Muskie showered with paper

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Record Washington Bureau
PHILADELPHIA — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie went from one end of this city to the other Wednesday delivering a message of brotherly love to thousands of receptive but admittedly worried partisans.

At day's end, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, admitted that the Humphrey-Muskie ticket is in a horse race in Pennsylvania. But he did not write off the party's chances of carrying the state.

In a variety of appearances, before basically friendly audiences, Muskie sharpened his attacks on both Republican standard bearer Richard Nixon and third party candidate George Wallace, pleading with nominal Democrats not to stray from the fold this year.

He argued that the "real issue" of the campaign is not Vietnam, but whether America is to be divided by hatred, fear and uncertainty. On the "law and order issue" Muskie asserted both Nixon and Wallace are "appealing to fear."

The Muskie message was delivered in mild autumn weather to a disappointing noontime crowd at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets and to an attentive luncheon audience of Democratic leaders, including many supporters of Sen. Eugene McCarthy, whose interest in Humphrey has been lukewarm.

Muskie experienced his first ticker tape parade on the short drive from his hotel to the noon street rally. Riding in a convertible, he was almost buried by tons of shredded paper and plastic dumped from office buildings.

Ironically, the Senator's first appearance of the day was at a convention of the American Gas Assn. at which he pleaded for industries help in controlling pollution.

Nonetheless, Muskie told his audience he appreciated his first paper shower "even if it did create grime in the streets." He apologized for the pun.

Seasoned observers said that the street rally could not be rated a success. There was no spontaneous enthusiasm, although the crowd listened closely. There were no hecklers.

While Muskie gave his audiences here a lift, many of the individuals said privately that the battle for Pennsylvania is all uphill. One ward chairman commented: "The picture here is grimmer than the papers say."

Mrs. Joseph Clark, whose husband is fighting to retain his Senate seat, said Muskie had touched a responsive chord with the audience.

She said the presidential contest in Pennsylvania could be converted to a Democratic sweep if Muskie would spend only five days barnstorming the state.

A surprise head table guest was Bayard Rustin, the Negro leader who organized the 1963 Civil Rights march on Washington. Like Muskie, Rustin said "liberals" should not be "crying in their beer" over Vietnam, but should be worrying about the "fantastic fears of American Whites" and the "fantastic frustrations of American blacks."

Muskie moves into New Jersey today and then on to New England for the weekend.

Little Billy Lis, 4, of Philadelphia stands ankle deep in confetti and ticker tape that was thrown out of offices buildings here for Sen. Edmund Muskie during his campaign here Wednesday.

Coup try fails in S. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — A coup attempt against President Nguyen Van Thieu's government has been foiled and mass arrests of ranking South Vietnamese officers are expected, a high government source said Wednesday.

An official spokesman for Thieu, however, denied knowledge of any coup attempt, although he admitted the government had placed South Vietnamese armed forces on full alert. The U.S. Embassy also said it had no information about an abortive coup.

The source, who is in a position to know, told The Associated Press several Vietnamese majors and colonels had already been arrested.

"You can expect a lot of people to be arrested in the next few days as a result of the coup attempt that failed," he said.

The source reported that the coup was thwarted Tuesday night. If true, it was the first attempt to overthrow Thieu's government.

The source said details of the attempted overthrow were fuzzy, and it was not yet known who was behind it. The report that several marine officers were arrested could indicate that Lt. Gen. Le Nguyen Khang, the marine commander who is a political ally of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, might have been involved.

Offer candidates prime night slot

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House struggled through a historic and record-setting session Wednesday to pass a bill that could pave the way for television-radio debates between the three major presidential candidates.

Immediately after House passage, the Columbia Broadcasting System offered the candidates and their running mates one hour of prime TV and radio time on each of the next four Sundays before the election for a confrontation.

The National Broadcasting Co. asked the three presidential candidates to arrange for their representatives to meet with network officials to arrange a time and format acceptable to all.

But House action sent the measure back to the Senate where the battle could resume. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said the bill will be called up at the start of today's Senate session and he had been told Republican opponents expect to speak at some length against it.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., told a news conference he will try to call up the bill as soon as it is officially transmitted from the House. He said he will urge acceptance of the House version because to send it to a Senate-House conference would mean its defeat.

The House vote came 27 hours, 37 minutes after the House went into session Tuesday. Most of the session, 20 hours, 19 minutes, was spent on 45 roll calls.

Some 20 hours was spent in a Republican-led filibuster before the bill could even be brought up for consideration.

Passage of the bill was on a vote of 280 to 35, with all of the nayes cast by Republicans. Voting for it were 182 Democrats and 98 Republicans.

The bill would allow television and radio networks to arrange the joint appearance of major candidates—Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey, Republican Richard M. Nixon, American Independent George C. Wallace—without giving equal time to numerous minor seekers for the presidency.

Rooney rips into Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, the GOP presidential nominee, is a "reluctant dragon" who fears face to face debate with his opponents, Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., charged Wednesday.

Rooney told the House that is why Republican House members are stalling action on legislation to suspend equal broadcast time requirements that now are the law for all political candidates.

He said Nixon's "protectors in the House are fighting desperately to keep their leader from having to face the American voters without prior staging by his Madison Avenue public relations consultants."

Rooney's comments came as the House went into its 25th straight hour on a Senate-passed bill to suspend temporarily the Federal Communications Commission's equal time rules.

If passed by the House, the measure would clear the way for televised debates.

Rooney, a member of the House Commerce Committee that reported out the bill, said the GOP colleagues regard the delay as "something of a joke."

"I regard it as a despicable attempt to make a mockery of our free election process and the vital importance of intelligent voting," said Rooney, who is from Bethlehem.

Earlier Wednesday, House minority leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan told a news conference he hadn't been in contact with Nixon while the House was battling over consideration of the measure.

Wallace in Scranton hits press, hecklers

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter

SCRANTON — George C. Wallace called for a congressional investigation of poll takers, shouted down student protesters and outdrew both Nixon and Humphrey during a 45-minute no-holds barred speech Wednesday at Courthouse Square in front of a crowd of about 7,500 persons.

The 49-year-old American Independent Party hopeful lashed out on his razor sharp jibes on Nixon and Humphrey when he said they're both running scared of him, particularly Nixon, who said Wallace was going down in the polls.

The former Alabama Governor then mocked professional poll takers. First, he said, the polls showed me on the rise, and now they're going to show me going down.

"Humphrey says he'll debate even though he's out of the picture," Wallace said. He asked the crowd why Nixon won't debate.

And then he shouted over the turned up loudspeakers: "Humphrey and Nixon weren't even going to talk about Wallace but they are now! They're even scared of me in the Mid-West."

He compared the two other Presidential candidates to UFOs (Unidentified Flying Objects) flying around aimlessly. "Running around like an old blind dog having fits, scared of our rush," he said.

"Senator Dicksen wants to change the electoral system. Why?" he asked. "Because he's afraid of Wallace."

Wallace was alluding to the possibility of his voting strength throwing the election into the house of representatives, if neither Humphrey nor Nixon could gain a majority in the electoral college.

Band plays

Just before Wallace spoke Sam Smith and the American Party Band played a number entitled "Stage Fright." The tune didn't apply to Wallace who held an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation with dissent students throughout his speech.

Matching their "Seg Heils" and "Peace, Peace" chants Wallace blew kisses and winked at the student group mostly from the University of Scranton.

"You're never going to get promoted to second grade," he told them.

The students let out a locomotive roar: "Wallace go home, Wallace go home, Wallace go home."

"After I get through speaking," he said.

During another student outburst Wallace threw more kisses and then said, "You fellows don't even vote. Let's talk about the issues." He waved his hand to the TV cameras and pointed to the students. "Get 'em on TV," he said. "That's what they like."

"Nazis, Nazis," the students roared.

"I was fighting Nazis before you were born," Wallace shouted back.

As the student chants grew louder so did the loudspeakers. "I might not teach you politics but I'll teach you good manners," Wallace told them.

The avowed segregationist said he had never made a statement about race or color. He pointed out that one of the highest outpouring of votes for his wife, Lurleen, when she was running for Alabama Governor.

Shafer bill prohibits public strike

HARRISBURG (AP) — After five months of study the Shafer administration introduced its proposed new Public Employees Act Wednesday, a document that authorizes compulsory arbitration for public employees, and strictly prohibits their right to strike.

In announcing the proposal at a news conference here, Gov. Shafer conceded that it was contrary to the thought of a gubernatorial panel which recommended that the state grant public employees a "limited right to strike."

"The bill reflects my deep conviction that public employees should not strike," Shafer said.

The governor also acknowledged that the bill was "at variance" with the opinion of David H. Kurtzman, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who two weeks ago endorsed the limited strike privilege for teachers.

The bill, if passed by the General Assembly, would amend the current Public Employees Act, enacted in 1967, which calls neither for collective bargaining, compulsory arbitration, nor the right of state employees to join unions.

was from a large black ward in Selma. "She received 87 per cent," he said.

Wallace got strong applause when he advocated giving more control of the country's school systems to the states and an end to federal busing of school children.

Support police

When he promised "moral support to police and firemen in the country," the crowd went wild.

Wallace mentioned Robert Kennedy three times in his familiar theme of law and order and anachism. Each time he spoke Kennedy's name, the crowd grew strangely quiet.

He said Western European nations should send their men to help us fight in Vietnam and if they didn't do it, then we should cut off all our foreign aid to them.

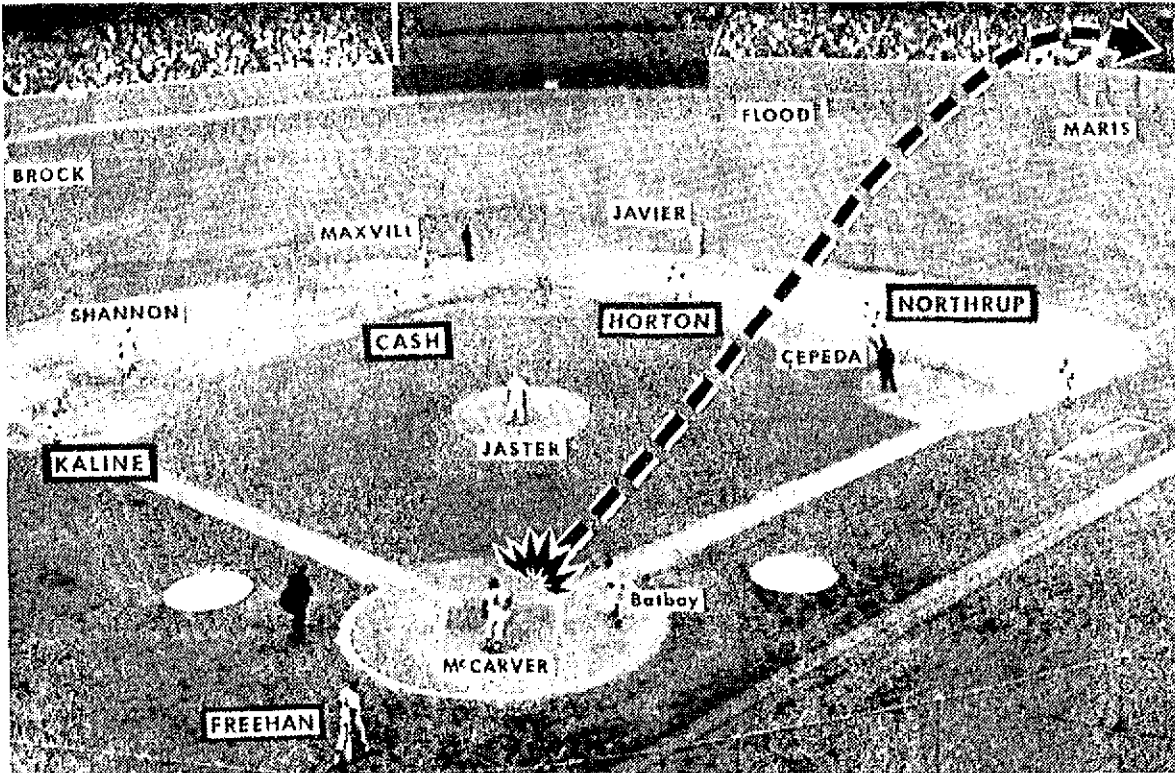

In dealing with other nations he said we should worry about them instead of worrying about what they think of us. He called for "superiority instead of a parity in a matching of this country's and Russia's national defense systems. "Then we will be able to go to the peace table," he said.

He blasted a local Scranton reporter for mimicking his use of the word "going" for going. He maintained that he always said "going" instead of "gonna." The New York Times came in for a dressing down when he referred to one of their reporters proclaiming Castro as "The Robinhood of the Caribbean."

Laughing back at the polls, he quipped, "We won a poll in Scranton, didn't we?"

A short scuffle between pro- and anti-Wallace resulted in two girls being ejected from the crowd by police. "You got the wrong ones," Wallace told the police. The girls were wearing Wallace Buttons. "Arrest him," Wallace said pointing to a student in the front row of the crowd.

The student increased the tempo and sound of his protests.

Tigers roar, final series game today

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Detroit Tigers evened the World Series at three games apiece Wednesday by scoring a record-tying 10 runs in the third inning and pounding the St. Louis Cardinals 13-1.

The seventh and deciding game will be played here Thursday with Bob Gibson scheduled to pitch for the Cardinals and Mickey Lolich going for the Tigers.

Denny McLain, Detroit's 31-game winner who lost his first two Series starts, went the route and scattered nine hits, losing his shutout on Julian Javier's single with two out in the ninth. The Tigers took a 2-0 lead against St. Louis starter Ray Washburn in the second inning on a walk to Norm Cash, Willie Horton's run-scoring double and Bill Freehan's single. They shelled Washburn and three successors in the big third inning, which matched the 10 runs scored by the Philadelphia Athletics against the Chicago Cubs on Oct. 12, 1929.

Diek McAuliffe walked to open the third and scored on singles by Mickey Stanley and Al Kaline. Larry Jaster relieved Washburn and a single by Cash made it 4-0. Horton walked, loading the bases, and Jim Northrup belted the 11th grand slam home run in World Series history.

Kaline hit a solo homer off Steve Carlton in the fifth to close out the Detroit scoring.

LeMay may visit Vietnam

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — George C. Wallace plans to send his running mate, retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, to Vietnam for a first-hand look at the war they aim to end swiftly if elected, The Associated Press learned Wednesday.

The third party presidential candidate will announce LeMay's plans in a speech today at Vanderburgh County Courthouse in Evansville, sources close to Wallace said.

Congolese rebel dies at dawn

KINSHASA, Congo (AP) — A firing squad has executed Pierre Mulele, who led bloody insurrections in eastern sectors of the Congo in 1961-64, the government announced Wednesday. The guns were reported to have felled him at a secret site about dawn.

Mulele was a 39-year-old Peking-trained leftist who turned against the central government after serving as education minister in the Patrice Lumumba regime, which took control when Belgium granted this African territory independence in 1960.

A special military court had sentenced Mulele to death for the 1961-64 rebellion after a 15-hour trial Tuesday, 10 days after he returned from exile in the neighboring Congo Republic (Brazzaville) under a presumed amnesty.

Brazzaville broke off diplomatic relations with the Congo Wednesday night in protest against the trial and execution.

President Joseph D. Mobutu rejected an appeal from Mulele for clemency. A lieutenant general who once directed the Congo's armed forces in campaigning against Mulele's guerrillas, Mobutu told his Cabinet he had always maintained there would never be an amnesty for war criminals.

The president said he could not issue a reprieve because, up to the last minute before his return, Mulele had tried to overthrow the Congo's government.

Mulele organized a commando squad from Communist Cuba's Embassy in Brazzaville, which is just across the Congo River, and the action of these commandos was not stopped until the day after his return, Mobutu said.

Capt. Marion Ngouabi, the Brazzaville strong man, was reported to have sent two missions to Kinshasa and made two telephone calls seeking Mulele's release.

There were angry charges from spokesmen of the former French colony across the river that Kinshasa had negotiated Mulele's return under a ruse, since an amnesty had been announced.

Johnson extends food program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed Tuesday a bill extending the food stamp program for three years and increasing the funds for the program.

In a statement, Johnson said the bill "will carry us forward toward our goal of protecting every American against hunger or malnutrition."

Apollo 7 space, ground teams in fine tune for Friday flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The three Apollo 7 astronauts fine-tuned their pilot skills Wednesday while technicians at their launch pad worked smoothly toward an on-time lift-off Friday for an 11-day flight that could set America back on course for the moon.

Even as Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham drilled in a computer-driven mock spacecraft, three other spacemen who may fly around the moon at Christmas time saw their huge Saturn 5 rocket rolling to a launch pad seven miles away from that of Apollo 7.

The two events—Apollo 7 preparations and rollout of the 363-foot-tall Saturn 5 vehicle to be launched about Dec. 20—combined to demonstrate that the nation's man to the moon program apparently has recovered from the stunning setback received when three astronauts died in the Apollo 1 fire Jan. 27, 1967.

"Hardware is beginning to appear down at the Cape for the lunar mission, and we're looking forward to moving out," Dr. George E. Mueller, NASA's associate administrator for manned space flight, said as the Saturn 5 lumbered out of its cavernous assembly building.

Asked if the nation still has a chance of making its goal of a manned lunar landing by 1970, Mueller said: "We have every hope that we will."

"The Apollo 7 pre-launch activity is going as smooth as we've ever seen for a manned space flight," observed another NASA official.

Apollo 7 pilots Schirra, Cunningham and Eisele spent several hours in the spacecraft simulator Wednesday, then set aside time to discuss last-minute flight details and watch por-

Airborne blocks Saigon flank

SAIGON (AP) — About 4,000 paratroopers of the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division have been moved from positions below the demilitarized zone to protect Saigon's western flank against enemy attacks, the U.S. Command announced Wednesday.

Sources said the 3rd Brigade of the 82nd will replace a brigade of the 25th Infantry Division in the capital military district.

The infantrymen are moving further out along the jungled approaches northwest of Saigon to guard infiltration routes from the Cambodian border.

The sources said the military realignment was planned some time ago.

The 82nd Airborne has been teamed up with U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese as a blocking force to prevent a North Vietnamese invasion across the demilitarized zone.

There was little ground action across the country as allied troops continued massive sweeps, searching for enemy supply caches. Two more munitions dumps were found Wednesday, adding to the 150 tons of weapons and supplies found in recent weeks.

In the air war, waves of U.S. B52 bombers roared over the southern fringes of North Vietnam Tuesday to lay a protective shield of bombs around American Marines sweeping through the DMZ.

The stratofortresses dropped 1,000 tons of bombs, blasting enemy artillery emplacements and suspected North Vietnamese troop concentrations.

LBJ choice approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee approved Wednesday President Johnson's nomination of David Stahl, city solicitor of Pittsburgh, to be a judge on the Third U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The court serves New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and the Virgin Islands.

The committee also recommended Senate confirmation of two U.S. attorneys—Morton L. Susman for the southern district of Texas, and Jon O. Newman of Connecticut.

Israeli proposal lifts U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States detected a ray of hope Wednesday in the latest official Israeli statement on prospects of peace in the Middle East, but Arab diplomats said a first look uncovered nothing new.

Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister, offered to the General Assembly Tuesday what he described as a comprehensive program for building a permanent peace with the Arab nation.

A U.S. spokesman described Eban's speech as important, and stressed anew the emphasis the United States was placing on the private negotiations taking place at the United Nations under the auspices of Gunnar V. Jarring, the U.N. peace envoy.

"We note the foreign minister's assurance that Israel will cooperate in this task," the spokesman added.

The Arab diplomats reached private agreement not to reply immediately afterward to the Eban speech, but can be expected to do so in the general policy debate. Egypt may speak Thursday.

Arab resentment to the U.S. decision to begin negotiations with Israel for the sale of latest model U.S. jet warplanes might be a negative factor in the U.N. peace talks, some diplomats said.

Fouad Boutros, the Lebanese foreign minister, asked by a reporter if he found anything in the Eban speech that could be helpful in arriving at a Middle East settlement, replied: "I have not yet studied in detail Mr. Eban's speech, but at first hand I don't think there is anything new or helpful in it."

Involvement seen for businessmen

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A research editor predicted Wednesday businessmen will be under increased pressure to take the responsibility of solving future social problems.

Richard R. Salzman, director of Research Institute of America, said businessmen will be searching for ways to meet that challenge and responsibility.

Addressing the American Gas Association, Salzman said the businessman must become more than entrepreneur. He must also be a "sociologist and psychologist, a statesman and chaplain."

State may build retaining way

'Golden' celebration
TRACHSVILLE — The Confirmation class of 1918, of the Trachsville United Church of Christ will attend the Communion service of the Church on Sunday to celebrate their 50th year of confirmation. At that time the class included: Raymond Andrews, Russell Bartholomew, Paul C. Berger, David Borger, Harvey Borger, Lizzie Borger, Clyde Buck, Lallimer Eckhart, Monroe Frantz, Robert Griffith, Helen Griffith, Ralph Hittner, Russell Keller, Lillian Kitten, Sadie Kunkle, Eva Lewis, David N. Miller, James Planceck, Mabel Serfass, George Snale, Paul Smith, Clinton Strohl, Edna and Dorothy Strohl.

Polk Twp. orders 40 stop signs

KRESGEVILLE — Polk Township supervisors have ordered 40 "stop" signs, it was announced during a monthly meeting held in Kresgeville schoolhouse. The State Highway Department will furnish and erect the additional 40 "stop" signs for intersections of township roads with state highways.

Four "40 miles-per-hour" speed limit signs have already been installed in Kresgeville by the State on request of the supervisors, but the supervisors noted that there was still no "dangerous curve" sign erected on Route 209 in Kresgeville near the American Hotel, as they requested.

Supervisors discussed possible purchase of a four wheel drive dump truck for snow plowing.

Lawrence Getz, secretary, reported that he received no correspondence from the county commissioners as to the status and replacement of two township bridges inspected by the commissioners recently.

Supervisors were informed of an amendment to the township code requiring that the budget be approved by Dec. 31, as changed from the previous date of fourth Monday in March. Supervisors will work on the budget in November.

Floyd Christman, roadmaster, reported that blacktopping is proceeding as scheduled on the Honeymoon Hide-Away Road to the Carbon County line.

BANGOR — The Pennsylvania Highway Department may construct a retaining way on the west side of South Main Street as part of a reconstruction project that has been underway since last May, Bangor Mayor William D. Scott said this week.

Mayor Scott told the Borough Council at its Monday meeting that he received a letter from the Highway Department indicating the state would assume the responsibility for constructing the retaining way.

Councilmen, in conjunction to Scott's report, agreed to variances in the width of sidewalks to be constructed in the area in order not to affect the property lines or destruction of the Salem Church walls.

Troy Reigel, chairman of the building and grounds committee, also reported that Martins Creek from Market to South Main Streets has been cleared of debris. He also said no bids for improvements to the Bee Hive parking lot have been received. The borough engineer will study other ways to improve the parking lot.

Council approved the payment of $1,243 to the Buzzard Electric Company as the borough's share for the installation of the new feeder lines placed last fall for the Christmas lighting.

The Bangor Area Chamber of Commerce is to contribute a similar amount for the work. Rex Erdman reported that 10 additional Christmas strings had been purchased by the borough as a cost of $1,200.

Councilman Frederick Jones, chairman of the safety committee reported that the State Highways Department had agreed to establish a 35 mile speed limit on Walnut Street in the borough to the area of the Greenwalk Trout Hatchery.

Daniel Phillips, chairman of the sewer committee reported a balance of $50,986 in that account and expenses of $1,334 for the past month.

Bills totalling $9,512 were approved for payment. Sherwood Evans, borough treasurer reported the following account balances: general $34,701; state highway aid, $11,450 and building and property, $1,872. Mayor Scott reported receipts of $1,011 in the past month divided as follows: licenses $32; fines, $460; building and digging permits, $6 and parking meters, $566.

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Planning and Zoning Commission met briefly Tuesday night. No new business was brought before the commission.

Construction of a new parking lot also began this week. Renovations to the parsonage is planned and installation of carpeting in the vestibule is pending.

Wind Gap Halloween parade October 30 with 90 units

WIND GAP — Preliminary arrangements have been completed for the three division, 90 unit Halloween parade to be held in Wind Gap on Wednesday night, October 30 at 7 p.m. The parade is sponsored by the Wind Gap-Pen Argyl Rotary Club.

James R. Charron, Chairman of the Rotary Club, Halloween Committee, said that nearly $1,500 will be awarded as prizes. The parade will include bands, drum and bugle corps, religious floats, community service floats, community service groups, special groups, business floats, political floats, unclassified groups and floats and three groups of costumed Halloween paraders.

Registration forms for all floats and groups may be obtained in Wind Gap at Knitter's Service Station, Reinhardt Shoe Store, Pacovich's Esso Service Station, Hahnke's Cut Rate, and Sandt's Food Market at Pen Argyl at Black's Cut Rate and in Plainfield Township at Werner's Belfast Corner Store and Tommy's Highway Service. Registration forms will be mailed upon request to James Sandt, Secretary, RD 1, Pen Argyl.

Costumed Halloween paraders will be registered and assigned an identification number on the night of the parade at the registration booth set up at Valerie Fashions, Inc. 316 N. Broadway, Wind Gap.

Individual costumed paraders will be emphasized in the parade. Paraders, ages from babies to 12 will be in the first division; ages 13 to 19 in the second division and ages 20 and up in the third division.

A total of 93 prizes will be awarded to costumed paraders with first prize of $10, second, $5 and third, $3 to the following characterizations in each group: Babies to age 12; best decorative bicycle costume; most beautiful baby carriage entry; most beautiful lot female costume; best female child characterizations less bicycles TV personality; most unique child's costume; best unclassified costume; most comical child costume and most monstrous costume.

All individual paraders will receive a number tag when they assemble for the parade at 6 p.m. Prize winners will be selected by numbers and at the end of the parade will be called to the band stand to receive their cash prizes.

Judges for the Halloween paraders will be in costume and parade with the various groups to make their selections. Judges have been recruited from a wide area including, Nazareth, Easton, Stroudsburg, and Trenton, N.J.

A youth dance consisting of hop dancing, fun, games and frolicking will be held at the Wind Gap Park, Lehigh Avenue following the parade.

Leonard Dell'Alba Chairman of the Fun and Frolic Committee will assist the members of the Pen Argyl Area School District's Student Government in planning the Dance and Frolic at the Wind Gap Park. Student member of the committee are: Sharon Weidman, Debra Weidman, Susan Romano, Peggy Dreher, Kathy Poloni, Robin Davis, Margie Hahn, Ann Masul, Diane Barlieb, Stephanie Sabatino, Craig Kemmerer.

Planners review activities

MILFORD — The Pike County Planning Commission, which has not met since the beginning of summer, Monday night reviewed activities which had occurred since their last regular meeting.

The planners Monday began their first regularly scheduled meeting of the fall at 7:30 p.m. in the Courthouse.

Daniel Sullivan, chairman, said the commission reviewed the status of subdivision ordinances in Pike County.

Delaware Township, currently reviewing its subdivision ordinances, is expected to act on the measure next month.

The commission's steering committee will also meet with the Pike County Commissioners and Agricultural Extension office to plan activities for the following year.

Bangor man faces counts

BANGOR — August Growler of Bangor R.D. 2 was cited with three traffic violations by Easton Police as the aftermath of a two car collision in Easton Thursday.

Growler was charged with driving too fast for conditions, going through a stop sign and driving without a license.

Growler suffered possible head injuries as the result of the crash and is in satisfactory condition at Easton Hospital.

Record growth marked by expansion

Pardon us for a moment today while we put some of our own story into print.

Most of the things done to improve your Pocono Record we've revealed as they happened and surely you're aware of others. You prove that to us in frequent comments and in the number of papers you buy. Circulation is at an all-time high, read by 1,400 more families per day than last year.

But during this National Newspaper Week, let's take stock.

Stocks, incidentally, are one area of improved service. Until last spring we settled for a very limited list of stock exchange prices. Then we added a special United Press-International market wire and expanded our daily business page to six columns of news.

The same thing happened in sports. Instead of a small share of the single teletype connecting us with news of the outside world, sports now arrives in detail on a full time UPI wire. In addition to generally broader coverage, obvious additions have been major league box scores and statistics.

There are more and better people, too, gathering and editing our expanded local news coverage. In fact, within three years the news room budget has gone up 50 per cent.

Our circulation department has found this better product inspiring. Extra delivery routes have extended to small communities that didn't always get their paper on the day it was published. Now they do. And new motor routes assure our before-breakfast arrival in rural routes. This makes us more valuable to readers and advertisers alike.

Our people too, the ones you've gotten to know at The Record, are becoming more valuable to you and us. Every department head and many other employees too have been to at least one seminar or meeting this year to explore ways to improve the product.

Technology? New systems? If it's been a year since you visited The Record, you'll be amazed. We've invested over $100,000 in composing room equipment this year to process more news faster. And in our business office, an NCR has computerized our accounts—the bills we send and the bills we pay.

As you can tell, we're feeling very healthy and happy as we wish a happy Newspaper Week to all.

Big day Friday

The United States will attempt to pull itself back into contention in the space race with the Soviet Union Friday when it launches Apollo Seven, with a three man crew, from Cape Kennedy.

The United States has been criticized around the world in recent weeks for falling behind the Russians in an unofficial race to be first to place a human or humans on the moon.

The Apollo Seven, with Capt. Walter M. Schirra, Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham aboard, is scheduled to stay aloft for almost 11 days—10 days, 21 hours and 40 minutes to be exact.

According to plans, this flight will allow the astronauts an opportunity to check all systems and qualify the craft for more ambitious flights to follow.

This flight actually controls future space program plans for Uncle Sam. It is quite possible that a successful flight on Friday will bring about an attempted landing on the moon by 1969. A moon orbit flight is on the schedule for December.

Many people feel that the United States is now at the most critical point in its space program, at least the most critical since the infant days of the entire project.

A Saturn IB rocket will lift the Apollo Seven craft. This is the most powerful rocket ever used by the United States.

Interest in the success or failure of Friday's launch will be at its highest point in recent years.

The entire future of the program and our race to the moon with Russia is at stake.

A bride served baked ham and her husband asked why she cut the ends off.

"Well, that's the way mother always did it," she said.

The next time his mother-in-law stopped by he asked her why she cut the ends off the ham.

"That's the way MY mother did it," she replied.

And when grandma visited, she, too, was asked why she sliced the ends off. She said: "That's the only way I could get into the pan."

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — The New Left's "National GI Week," timed to include Election Day, Nov. 5, will trigger a series of anti-war demonstrations by Vietnam protest groups in other nations.

That is the indication implicit in data reaching government authorities who have been charting the activities of the "New Left." These government experts are convinced that leaders of the movement, emboldened by their propaganda success in Chicago, plan a coordinated drive to exploit the turmoil of an election year.

Significantly, a group of the New Leftists participated in a meeting in Budapest early in September with representatives of North Vietnam. Indications are that the anti-war, anti-draft "GI Week" was discussed in the context of anti-United States demonstrations in other parts of the world.

One of the U.S. participants in that meeting was Ray Dellinger, identified as a son of David Dellinger, the self-styled non-Soviet communist. The senior Dellinger, who helped to plan the disruptive protests at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, was not present in Budapest.

However, Dellinger senior did serve as chairman of a subsequent meeting here which made plans for the National GI Week (Nov. 1-6), Vietnam Sunday (Nov. 3) and other activities, including demonstrations on college campuses. That meeting, Sept. 14, was sponsored by the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam (NMC).

Also participating in that planning session were Thomas Hayden, a founder of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and another activist leader in Chicago, and Arnold Johnson, described in government reports as a member of the Communist Party's national committee and an old-time party leader.

The increasingly serious problem posed by the new socio-political protest movement was highlighted last week when the Federal Bureau of Investigation cited the New Left, along with Soviet and Red Chinese espionage, as growing threats to the national security.

Calling own shots

Information available to authorities here indicates that, while efforts may be coordinated at international conferences such as the one in Budapest, the "New Left" movement in the United States is calling its own shots.

Every indication now is that the demonstrations and protests here are planned without specific guidance from sources abroad. Officials here say the leadership of the movement in the United States is aggressive and quite capable of providing direction on its own.

Its leaders have met previously with protest groups abroad. For example, Hayden travelled to Hanoi with Yale professor Staughton Lynd and Communist theoretician Herbert Aptheker.

However, officials here are convinced that U.S. activists in their international contacts are simply trying to dramatize their "fraternal" association to radical youth movements in other nations — especially North Vietnam. For the present, at least, they are not getting outside direction.

The NMC, which has become the most important anti-war organization in the nation, is a coalition of anti-war and pacifist groups of the left. It plans to work in cooperation with other left-wing groups in the months ahead.

View ahead

At the NMC conference here plans were made for campaign demonstrations against political candidates — especially those who support the Vietnam war. Heckling and other disruptive efforts will continue to be the order of the day.

These activities are to be intensified during the projected "GI Week," and clergymen will be asked to support anti-Vietnam activities on "Vietnam Sunday." During the final pre-election week political headquarters in a number of cities are to be picketed.

Campus demonstrations will also be intensified, and tentative plans call for a strike or boycott of classes on some campuses on Election Day. Polling places, especially those easily covered by television and the news media, will be picketed.

NMC activists on the picket line will try to persuade potential voters not to cast ballots on Election Day. They will try to keep the total vote down to support their view that the nation opposes not only the war but the whole political system in the United States.

Generally, authorities believe the election campaign has been seized upon by the New Left as an opportunity to promote frustration and bitterness, using the uncertainty of the Vietnam war as a kind of catalyst.

Also discussed at the meeting here were demonstrations on Inauguration Day and a demonstration here if the election should be thrown into the House of Representatives for a final presidential decision. Another discussion topic, according to U.S. officials, was a possible "National Draft Card Turn-in Day" when draft registrants would take or mail their draft cards to their local draft boards.

Harris survey

Minorities seeking majority story of election campaign

By LOUIS HARRIS

In many ways, the politics of 1968 has consisted of a whole host of disparate minorities in search of a majority. The irony of the entire election at this point is that a minority party, the Republicans, could well win the election with only a minority of the popular vote.

The first minority thrust came from the efforts of Sen. Eugene McCarthy through the long winter and spring campaign, which found its roots in the deep frustration over the war in Vietnam. Spurred by President Johnson's decision not to run for re-election, the McCarthy cause faltered mainly because it could not demonstrate that the public at large wanted the United States to withdraw from Vietnam.

Although a majority of the people are opposed to moves to escalate the war, at no point has the number who favor an end to the bombings of North Vietnam exceeded the 25 per cent mark. Today, no more than 13 per cent support outright withdrawal of the United States from Vietnam.

Feeling falls

In addition, the McCarthy movement depended on the feeling that the army of young people who poured out to campaign from New Hampshire to California would meet with widespread acceptance from their elders among the voters. But in the confrontation at the Chicago convention, the public came down almost 5-1 against the young anti-war demonstrators and two out of every three people in the country feel that the organized protest against the war has done more harm than good to the country.

If the McCarthy thrust dominated the first half of the politics in 1968, then the second half has been marked by the surprising surge of George Wallace and his followers. The make-up and motivation of the Wallace movement is the complete opposite of the McCarthy drive.

The roots of the Wallace thrust can be found in a twin reaction in the white community against increasing militancy on the part of Negroes, affluent young people and opponents to the war. Wallace thrives as a candidate by posing a bastion of defense against the forces of change within both the black and intellectual sectors of American life.

The high-water mark for the Wallace candidacy so far has been 21 per cent. The potential size of the Wallace movement might be measured by the number who want the federal government out of race relations—just over 40 per cent. But even that is still a minority.

On the surface, the Wallace and McCarthy movements would appear to have no direct relation to each other. Yet, in many ways, the two are almost point and counterpoint in terms of what has happened in 1968.

Deep outgrowth

The McCarthy thrust was the outgrowth of something deeper than simply the candidacy of the Minnesota senator or his position on Vietnam. America is in an education explosion, and for the first time in modern political history, the affluent and their sons and daughters are on the frontiers of demanding change. The nature of this change is not clear nor spelled out plainly, but appears rooted in demands that the use of American power in the world be restrained and even abridged and that nonconformity in personal life should be more accepted.

Implicit in the McCarthy revolt was a sympathy with the cause of Negroes in their revolution to attain equal status. The short-lived candidacy of Robert Kennedy was a much more powerful symbol of this uprising.

The Wallace candidacy in many ways is a direct answer by people in rural areas and small towns, among the less well-educated and less affluent whites against both the McCarthy and black revolts.

The Wallace bid seems unlikely to approach anything like a majority, any more than the earlier McCarthy thrust did.

Both Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey represent a response from the ruling centers of both their parties to avoid domination by either of the challenging minorities. To be sure, Nixon has had to bend toward the Wallace phenomenon, far closer to a majority of the GOP candidate's supporters share many of the same resentments. And, in turn, Humphrey has moved more and more toward the Vietnam position of the McCarthy movement, for his natural backing can be found in that sector.

A case can be made for both Nixon and Humphrey as representatives of the compromise center in American politics. In the past, successful campaigns have contained within them diverse and often even opposed strains of thinking.

But it is also possible that the minority revolts of the McCarthy young people, the blacks and the Wallace followers are portents of the future in American politics. We may be in the process of dividing ourselves along change and no-change lines. And, if that is the case, the 1968 might be witnessing the end of the two-party system as we have come to recognize it for over the last century of our national life.

The Pennsylvania Story

Pennsylvania key

HARRISBURG — There can be little doubt about the somewhat crucial and possibly critical role Pennsylvania is destined to play in the forthcoming presidential election—particularly if viewed from the standpoint of candidate attention to the Keystone State.

The election is still almost a month away but campaign jogs already have been made into the state on the part of the prime candidates—with more to come ere the first certain snaps shut on the voting booth Nov. 5.

Both Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey, as well as third party presidential hopeful George Wallace, regard the Keystone State as a prime apple that must be plucked. Curiously perhaps, the gent from the south, George Wallace, regards the Pennsylvania vote potential insofar as he is concerned as one of the "better states" within the northeastern bloc.

This is not meant to infer that he expects to carry the state in his pocket; rather, Wallace forces regard it as one of the stronger vote potentials as opposed to an almost blanko prospect in some of the other states.

Various estimates

Estimates vary, of course, on just what the Wallace effort may produce when the ballots are counted the eve of Nov. 5, but it is generally felt he may clip between 10 and 15 per cent of the votes cast in this state.

Insofar as the two major candidates are concerned, Pennsylvania is regarded as somewhat of a tantalizing fruit basket for several reasons, foremost of which is the simple fact that Pennsylvania today cannot be assured of reposing in either the Republican or Democratic column.

This is in decided contrast to the not too distant past when it was an assured GOP state with candidate visits more of a courtesy than anything else.

Today Pennsylvania is regarded as a swing state, meaning of course that it could swing either way.

Its vote pattern of the past decade and a half has made the point stick out like a wounded thumb. For example, two Democratic chief executives have held the realm in back to back tenures within that short space of time—an unprecedented event for this state where Republican rule heretofore was a foregone conclusion.

On top of this the registration edge historically had been so far in favor of Republicans that in pre-1950 days it was next to impossible in many instances to even find candidates willing to run for local or legislative offices.

General change

All of this has changed within the space of the past few years. Pennsylvania Democrats even reached the point where they outnumbered Republicans on the registration front, previously an unheard of situation!

This is not the case at the moment. Republicans do indeed hold the registration edge going into this election, but the edge is so small that Pennsylvania is not regarded as a sure state by any means for either major candidates.

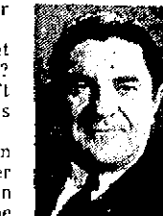

Registration itself is not viewed as a firm criteria today by even the most optimistic party pro. It just doesn't mean that much any more. In fact this point has been succinctly under underscored in the past four gubernatorial elections when in each instance the successful candidate (regardless of whether Democratic or Republican) won his gubernatorial spurs in spite of the fact that his particular party was in the registration minority.

Thus the competitive pattern on the presidential front in the Keystone State in this year 1968 where Pennsylvania's five million-plus registered voters could swing the pendulum either way in favor of Democrats or Republicans—both on the popular vote count and its 32-vote electoral college bloc.

Ironically perhaps, the nibbling of Wallace could be the decisive factor in the end!

Doctor, I'd like to know

WHAT is the function of the spleen? Can a person live normally after it is removed?

The spleen is one of the most remarkable organs of the body because it plays an important role in so many body functions. Despite this, people whose spleen is removed because of a number of medical and surgical conditions, can function normally and live in good health.

The spleen is a fairly large organ which lies in the left upper portion of the abdomen just beneath the diaphragm and is partially protected by the rib cage.

Probably the most important function of this organ is its relationship to the manufacture of blood cells and later, the destruction of those same cells after they have exhausted their function. The spleen can also act as a filtering mechanism to help clean the blood of toxic substances and bacteria that may have found their way into the blood stream. In addition to this the spleen can store large quantities of blood and keep it there until it gets a call from some part of the body saying "rush, send blood soon."

The spleen is affected by tumors, Leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, many types of anemia, and a strange blood disturbance known as purpura.

The bone marrow and a remarkable group of cells as the reticulo-endothelial system takes over the work of the spleen when it is removed.

Patients with hemophilia, the royal bleeder's disease, sometimes benefit by the removal of the spleen and almost always can again live perfectly normal lives. The decision for the removal of such an important organ is made, of course, after a most complex survey by physicians, surgeons and hematologists, specialists in the study of the blood.

Her rival is boyfriend

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the woman who married a homosexual and didn't realize it until it was too late opened my eyes. What I see might be completely meaningless, but then again, it could save me from making a horrible mistake. Please guide me. Rod and I started to date two years ago. I was 20 and he was 24. For the first 18 months our dates were casual—almost platonic. When he asked me to "be his girl" and not to date others, I agreed, because by then I had become very fond of him. Last night Rod asked me to marry him. I want to say yes, but I'm afraid he might not be normal. This is the story: Rod has kissed me only twice in all the time we have been going together. Those two kisses, to be truthful, were my idea, not his. Also, it was like kissing a marble slab. I'm sure Rod has never had any previous sexual contact with a girl and one could hardly call those two kisses "sexual."

Rod has a male friend who is a known homosexual. He spends more time with this friend than he does with me. When I questioned him about their close relationship, he said he feels sorry for "Mary" (this is the man's nickname and everyone calls him that) and he doesn't care what people say—he is not going to forsake him. What do you think of this, Ann?

Z.X.Y.

Dear Z: I think you don't need a 26-year-old husband who has kissed you twice in two years and has a boyfriend named Mary.

Dear Ann Landers: Sunday, just as we were leaving the house for church, I glanced at my wife and nearly died. I yelled, "Bertha, you forgot your skirt!" She screamed, "You boob, this is my new outfit." Bertha has added about 20 pounds since we married in 1948. She is also a little bowlegged. Short skirts don't do a thing for her. She claims it is more important for a woman to be in style than to wear something flattering. She won't listen to me. Will you tell her?

AGIN 'EM

Dear A: It would be a waste of time. The overaged and overweight dolls who insist on wearing hiked hemlines are hopeless. A woman who refuses to listen to her husband and doesn't believe what her mirror tells her wouldn't pay any attention to me.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Just once, mother, listen!

There's a scene in Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" that breaks me up. It is when Emily, who has died in childbirth, chooses to re-live one day of her life on earth and picks her 12th birthday. It is a painful experience to Emily as she watches her mother so pre-occupied and bent on aimless chatter. Finally Emily, who has seen the future, pleads desperately, "Mother, look at me! Just once! Really look at me and see me!"

The plaintive cry to be really seen is heard only in a Thornton Wilder play. But a much louder cry of children to be heard happens every day of our lives and is rarely heeded.

I have always been convinced that child raising is 10 per cent talking and 90 per cent listening. And anyone who says that is easy has never heard a child take two hours to tell you why he didn't wash his feet! I have a nine-year-old who can take a simple statement like, "He's wearing my belt" and turn it into a 36-week television series. I have had them tell me a story of a cartoon they saw on TV and have to close their mouth due to darkness. I have listened to more unfunny knock-knock jokes, more riddles that don't make sense and more shaggy dog episodes without points than I care to remember.

How often have they said to me, "I told you this morning. You weren't listening."

There's a lot of talk about communication. Is it possible too many people are busy communicating and there is no one left to listen? I heard recently of a nun who gave a new twist to an old adage, "The family that eats together, stays together." She lost the rhyme, but she gained a pretty good point. Kitchens have become diners . . . diners have become mobile . . . tables have become something to fold the ironing on.

Listen! "Guess what? I got my TV set at the doctor's today." That's nice.

Listen! "Mother, you're gross." That's nice.

Listen! "What kind of a teacher wears sideburns and white socks?" That's nice.

Listen! "I got a closet full of stolen hubcaps." That's nice. "Mother! Listen to me. Just once. Really listen to me and hear what I'm saying!" The words haunt me sometimes, for in the final scene of "Our Town" Emily returns to her grave on the hillside and feels pity for the rest of living at how little they understand the wonderful gift that is life . . .

Mrs. Hulme W. Thomas Jr.

Paula M. Meixell Water Gap bride

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Miss Paula Marie Meixell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Meixell of Delaware Water Gap, was married at 11 a.m. on Sept. 28 to Hulme W. Thomas Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hulme W. Thomas of 1537 Allen St., Allentown.

Rev. Raymond Poortstra performed the ceremony in the Delaware Water Gap Methodist Church which was decorated with bouquets of white chrysanthemums on the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie in an A-line with short sleeves, floor-length train and scoop neckline. A gold peau de soie pillbox held her short veil. She carried a cascade of yellow and white carnations.

Robert Reinhart of 230 Princeton Ave., Palmerton, was best man. Alan Scifass and David Nonnemacher were ushers.

A reception was held at the Bartonsville Hotel with the centerpiece of bronze and yellow mums on the bridal table flanked by bouquets.

Leaving for a trip to New England the bride wore a camel wool suit and hat. On their return they will make their home at 209 North Seventh St., Allentown.

The bride, a graduate of Stroudsburg High School, is employed by Bethlehem Steel as an IBM keypunch operator. Her husband, a graduate of Allentown High School, attended Lehigh University. He is employed by IBM as a customer engineer.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

AAUW members formed an appreciative if sedentary audience for jazz this week and were delighted with their remarkable young jazz pianist. Like Johnny Eaton, he has had a strong foundation in classical music. Unlike John Eaton who now concentrates on progressive jazz, John Coates also used rag-time, classics in jazz style, and pure flights of fancy.

Peg Cramer, who also can make a piano stand up on its hind legs and beg, said dreamily "He's 'embodying' the theme in a hundred ways."

And embroidering the theme of club programs and projects. It looks as if anybody could get a liberal education just taking advantage of things coming up.

Community tribute to active workers

BRODHEADSVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Varney, who during their 20 years in the community have devoted so much of their time to community welfare, were honored by the residents at a farewell party held at the Zion Lutheran and United Church of Christ.

The Varneys are leaving to make their homes in New Jersey. A retired teacher, Mr. Varney has been active in Scouting not only in the area but on the executive council. Both he and Mrs. Varney have taught adult Sunday School classes, been active in the cemetery association and in many other phases of community life.

There were 150 people present to pay them honor at the party sponsored by the church council. They were presented with gifts and the good wishes of those attending.

Homecoming

MCMICHAELS — Rev. LeRoy Bernard will be the guest speaker at the McMichaels Methodist Church homecoming on Sunday, Oct. 13. He will speak at the 7:30 p.m. service. Rev. Edward Meeres will speak at the afternoon service at 2:30 p.m.

Decorated wash

A new line of washers and dryers has a special metal frame that trims the doors. It is designed to hold panels of decorator materials. In addition to the decorator fronts, the laundry pair features a special cycle for permanent press. (Whirlpool Corp., Benton Harbor, Mich.)

Jazz pianist plays for AAUW opener

STROUDSBURG — One of America's finest young jazz pianists, John Coates Jr. started the American Assn. of University Women off on the new year, "telling it like it is" with music rather than words at the opening meeting at the Stroud Community House.

A child prodigy, Coates was playing at the age of 3, a member of the Musicians Union at 12 and a recording artist at 17. Trained in classical music at Mannes School of Music in New York City, he combined a thorough knowledge of traditional music to the jazz idiom which he used. He is associated with Shawnee Press as composer-arranger.

From Duke Ellington, to popular music, to progressive jazz, he demonstrated many techniques. The program was introduced by Mrs. Earl Willhoite as a section of the branch emphasis on "Society's Reflection in the Arts."

Mrs. Harold James presided at the meeting in the absence of Dr. Mary Pickard. Mrs. James announced the request for volunteers to serve in the new Mental Health Wing at the hospital.

Mrs. Charles Wolbers, in Indian costume announced the matinee concert by the Indo-American Dance Group on Sunday, Oct. 13, at 3 p.m. in East Stroudsburg State College Auditorium, sponsored jointly with the Contemporary Dance Club at ESSC.

Mrs. David Mazer invited membership in the new Tocks Island Citizens Assn. with a

Sen. Reibman to speak to women here

STROUDSBURG — State Senator Jeanette Reibman will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Women's Democratic Club at its meeting on Monday night, Oct. 14 at 8 at the YMCA.

Mrs. Reibman serves the 18th district which includes the boroughs of East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg, and the townships of Eldred, Hamilton, Ross and Stroud in Monroe County as well as sections of Northampton County.

Mrs. John Wolfe, president of the county club has invited all Democratic women to hear Sen. Reibman.

Cherry Lane WSCS plans role at homecoming

CHERRY LANE — Plans for the homecoming services to be held at the Cherry Lane Methodist Church on Oct. 13 at 2:30 p.m., were discussed at the meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the church.

Rev. Francis Thomas, district superintendent, will be the guest speaker. Light refreshments will be served by the WSCS during the social hour which will follow the service. The public is invited.

Mrs. William Cron led the opening worship service. The new president, Mrs. Jack Counterman presided at the meeting. The group voted to send $25 to the Methodist Community Service Center and $10 to the Golden Cross Society of the Methodist Church Home in Cornwall.

Plans were also made for the annual ham and oyster supper to be held on Nov. 16 in the Tannersville firehouse.

Miss Nancy Caulfield

Meckes - Frailey

LONG POND — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Meckes Sr. of Long Pond announce the engagement of their daughter, Doris Lucille, to Frances Gary Frailey, son of Mrs. Pauline Frailey, Stroudsburg RD 3.

Miss Meckes is a graduate of Pocono Mountain Junior-Senior High School where she is now secretary to the administrative assistants.

Her fiancé, also a graduate of Pocono Mountain Junior-Senior High School, is employed at Pocono Dry-Wall. He recently returned from service in Vietnam and has been awarded the Purple Heart, Bronze Star, the Bronze Star with the V device and the Army Commendation Medal.

Caulfield - Snyder

MOUNTAINHOME — Mr. and Mrs. Lester Caulfield of Mountainhome announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Patricia, to CW 2 Michael John Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snyder of Tannersville.

Miss Caulfield is a 1966 graduate of Pocono Central Catholic High School and Mount Aloysius Junior College, Cresson.

CW 2 Snyder is a 1966 graduate of Pocono Mountain High School. He is serving in the United States Army, having just returned from 12 months in Vietnam. He is now stationed at Fort Walters, Texas.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Arrangement workshop set by Monroe Garden Club

STROUDSBURG — A flower arrangement workshop to be held on Wednesdays from 10 to 12 a.m. for six weeks, beginning Oct. 16 was announced at the meeting of the executive board of the Monroe County Garden Club.

Mrs. Harold Lanterman, vice president, announced plans for the workshop at the meeting held at the YMCA.

The workshops will be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas H. Wiss. Interested members may call Mrs. Wiss or Mrs. George T. Walker.

Mrs. Jacob Z. Hartman, president and Mrs. Russell Hamblin, local delegates, reported on the four-day state convention held in Bethlehem.

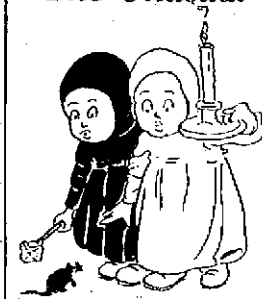

Mrs. Frank P. Ervey, book chairman, reported 119 garden books now in the Stroudsburg library. She also has the 1969 garden calendars.

A little hard to get

HARD TO GET? (Q.) When you've got the guy you want, should you play hard to get to keep him? I'm talking about breaking dates once in a while or not always being home when you know he's going to call.

L. of Syracuse, N.Y.

(A.) Playing just a tiny hard to get can be a good idea, but breaking dates is dangerous.

Instead of breaking dates, a wise girl says no every now and then when a boy asks for a date.

If, once in a while, you're not at home when he calls, he may feel a more urgent need to talk with you. But don't make a regular practice of being gone. If you do, he'll start calling someone who stays at home.

SISTER STORY: (Q.) I'm 16. My sister is 18. I have a problem and so does she, but she doesn't know about it. She's crazy about the boy she's been going with. The other night he came over when my sister wasn't at home and told me he loved me. He said he wanted to take me out but didn't know how to tell my sister about me.

I was shocked and upset. My sister and I have always been very close. I don't want to hurt

her. But I've FALLEN for him. J.D. in Eureka, Calif

(A.) This is not something to be indefinite about or to be put off. If you are dead serious about this boy, he should tell your sister how you and he feel. You should be present when he tells her. You can tell your story after he tells his and your sister won't have the pain of an extra confrontation with you.

If you are not dead sure that you are serious, the boy should break up with her in the regular way without mentioning you by name.

Do NOT play around with this situation in a mistaken effort to try to keep from hurting your sister.

Higher rates for Scranton Heat Co.

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Scranton Steam Heat Co. has been authorized by the Public Utility Commission to increase rates charged 888 customers in Scranton, the commission announced.

Legislator hits decision

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Democratic Leader Herbert Fineman criticized the decision of Republican Senate leaders to reconvene the legislature on Nov. 7.

"They're short-changing the people of the state," said the Philadelphia lawmaker, who for some time had been urging an earlier return.

Fineman's comment came a day after Republican members of the policy-making Senate Rules Committee recommended the Nov. 7 date, and House GOP leaders voiced no objections.

The bidding:
West North East South
Pass Pass Pass 1♥
Pass 3♥ Pass 4♥

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The temptation to finesse is frequently irresistible, but there are times when a finesse is clearly the wrong play and should be scrupulously avoided. For example, take this case where South got to four hearts on the bidding shown. West cashed the A-K-Q of diamonds and shifted to the jack of spades.

Declarer won with the queen and returned the queen of hearts, West following low. Had South finessed — which would seem to be the normal thing to do — he would have gone down. But he went up with the ace, caught the king, and thus made the contract. Catching the king was certainly a lucky shot, but the ace play was clearly correct under the circumstances. South had no way of knowing the king would fall, but he did know the finesse would fail, if attempted.

West had passed originally, and had also passed South's heart bid. It was inconceivable he would have done this with a hand containing the A-K-Q-10-5 of diamonds (as shown by his first three plays), the jack of spades (his next play), and the guarded king of hearts as well.

West would surely have opened the bidding with such a hand. Even if he had passed originally, he would certainly have done something the next time around. It was therefore reasonable to assume he did not have the king of hearts.

A heart finesse was consequently bound to fail. True, going up with the ace did not offer much chance of success either — but it did have the great merit of offering some chance to make the contract while the finesse offered none.

West could have defeated the contract by playing a diamond instead of a spade at trick four — permitting East to ruff with the king of hearts — but this extraordinary play was by no means clearly indicated.

Five Eastburg students win Merit honors

EAST STROUDSBURG — Letters of Commendation honoring them for their high performance on the 1968 National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQT) have been awarded to five students at East Stroudsburg Area High School, Principal Ralph O. Burrows has announced.

Those named Commended students are Connie Eilenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Eilenberger; Sally M. Newcomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Newcomb; John A. Stem, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stem; Howard A. Transue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Transue; and Jean O. Turn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Turn.

They are among 39,000 students in the United States who scored in the upper two per cent of those who will graduate from high school in 1969. The Commended students rank just below the 15,000 Semifinalists announced in September by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC).

Draft board calls seven

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — The number of Monroe County youths involved in the October draft and pre-induction physical examination calls stands at 39. State Selective Service Headquarters said yesterday.

Seven countians are slated to be called in the October draft — as compared with three called during September.

On the pre-induction physical examination site, 32 youths are scheduled for physicals up 30 from September's two youths.

Local board 105, Stroudsburg, will provide seven registrants for draft induction and 32 for physicals. All 39 registrants will report October 15.

The statewide scene shows 1,055 Pennsylvanians being called to fill the state's October draft quota of 809. In addition, 6,862 are being called for pre-induction physical examinations.

Printer files court suit

STROUDSBURG — A complaint asking for a judgement of $1,520 plus interest from November 10, 1967, was filed Wednesday in the Monroe County Courthouse by Conrad C. Young, Gilmanton R.D. 1, N.H., against Pocono Farms Horse Center, Inc., Coolbaugh Township.

Young is claiming the total for brochures, signs, mailers and other advertising material which he produced and delivered for the horse center.

Young further claims that the horse center has refused to pay any part of the total bill.

A wake service was conducted Tuesday night in William H. Clark Funeral Home with the Rev. Maloney officiating.

Optimist to sponsor county spelling bee

STROUDSBURG — The first annual Monroe County Spelling Bee involving seventh, eighth and ninth grade pupils will begin this month in the seven Monroe County schools and will conclude at a public spelldown Dec. 9 when the grand champion will be crowned.

Sponsored by the Optimist Club of the Stroudsburgs, the spelling bee could involve nearly 2,500 pupils in the three grades at Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Pocono Mountain, Pleasant Valley, Notre Dame, Pocono Central Catholic and Seventh Day Adventist Schools.

All pupils in the three grades attending these schools are eligible. Participation is on a voluntary basis. The contest is totally oral.

There will be four levels of competition with the first round (homeroom level) to be completed by Oct. 18.

Homeroom champions in each school will compete until three grade champions emerge in competition during round two which will be completed by Nov. 22.

Each of the grade champions will compete at the public spelldown at East Stroudsburg High School Auditorium Dec. 9 until three county grade champions have been victorious. These three finalists will compete until one of them becomes the grand champion.

The grand champion will receive a $100 savings bond and a 26-inch high trophy. In addition, each of the county grade champions will receive $25 savings bonds. Homeroom and grade champions will receive bronze and silver medals.

Officials who will supervise the public spelldown on Dec.

9 will include: Dr. John R. Wildrick, assistant to the president at East Stroudsburg State College, spellmaster; and Dr. Esther Larson, head of the English Department at the East Stroudsburg State College, and Carl T. Secor, former supervising principal at East Stroudsburg Area High School, judges.

Bruce P. Frassinelli, Stroud Township, is tournament director.

Church leader greeted

Worldwide church members still impress resort owners

By PETE GRADY

Pocono Record Reporter
CANADENSIS — John Linder, manager of Hillside Lodge, Canadensis put a drink up on the bar for his lone customer, lapped a pack of cigarettes and then stared at the cigarette in the palm of his hand.

He looked into the dining room where a group of members from the Worldwide Church of God were finishing their evening meal. Then he looked back at the cigarette and said, "These people make me guilty every time I light up a cigarette."

The church members do not smoke cigarettes, but according to Linder, they do about everything else for themselves around his lodge, like serving themselves cafeteria style in the dining room, and appointing a lifeguard for the greenhouse heated pool nestled in a grove of pines down below the lodge.

"Our waitresses aren't used to people who never complain," Linder said referring to the church members. "They like to hear a complaint once in a while. It's good for their morale. But these people. They just never complain."

"They don't come in to the bar very much," Linder said as he put down his cigarette and shook his head. "Maybe if I watch them long enough, I'll stop smoking. One thing good about this no smoking business, there's no dirty ashtrays to clean."

Bouncing baby

Inside the bright warm wood paneled dining room a father was bouncing his baby on his lap. Another church couple came over with their baby and both couples exchanged babies and smiles.

Down at the pool a young church member acting as lifeguard watched a couple of girls as they swam around the pool. A boy ran out of the pool and up the grass hill and into the lodge with a smile on his face that matched the smile of the man in the moon.

Ex-resident succumbs in Scranton

SCRANTON — Mrs. Margaret Evans, 1117 Jackson St., Scranton, formerly of East Stroudsburg, died Wednesday in the Graduate Hospital, Philadelphia.

Born in Scranton, she was the daughter of the late Adam and Elizabeth Watkins Knerim.

She was a member of Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg and Martha Washington Chapter Three, Order of Eastern Star.

Surviving are her husband, Thomas; one son, Leland of Flanders, N. J.; three grandsons; one brother, Kenneth of Stroudsburg; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Russell, Levittown and Mrs. Hazel Branch, Pen Argyl; also, several nieces and nephews.

Services will be held Saturday, 11 a.m. from Davies and Jones Funeral Chapel, 135 South Main St., Scranton, with the Rev. William Wunder officiating.

Cremation will follow the services at Maple Hill Crematorium, Scranton.

Friends and relatives may call Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. and Friday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Across from Canadensis and up the hill in Mountainhome Irwin Shinnen, superintendent of Onawa Lodge where 250 Negro church members are staying, put his feet up on his desk and said:

"These people could run the place without me. I might be here 16 hours a day but all they really need me for is in case of emergency, like a leaky pipe or something going wrong with the electricity."

"There's about 75 children here, and they are all well behaved and well mannered. They are not permitted to run rampant and they're respectful to their parents at all times. They might talk about litters in the city on those TV ads but here you can't find a candy wrapper in a wastepaper basket."

Shinnen said the members instituted their own "help themselves" program. "They do their own housekeeping," he said. "They make their own beds and they keep their own rooms clean, every day, day in and day out."

So far only one complaint has been made, and that was justified, Shinnen said. "The water was turned off Sunday."

P.M. forms foreign study plan

SWIFTWATER — The Foreign Language Department of Pocono Mountain High School is planning to organize a group of foreign language students to participate in the American Institute for Foreign Study in the summer of 1970.

Pocono Mountain School Board gave its approval during a meeting Wednesday night. Dr. William Nye, superintendent, presented the request for permission and explained that the program consists of four weeks of study of a foreign language at a European University and ten days of sightseeing. The students would be chaperoned by their local teachers.

Verdon Rustine, board director, questioned the cost of the venture, whether it will be considered a pilot project or accepted as an annual event.

Dr. Nye said it will mean "no cost to the district." Costs of the project would be borne by the individuals and funds raised by the group. The group wants to organize now and make plans for possible fund raising activities. The program is open to students, ages 15 through 19.

The cost per student will average $800, according to Dr. Nye and teachers participating will be paid by the Institute accordingly. Dr. Nye said he would like to see the program become active because he has seen it work very successfully in other school districts.

The board approved payment for the differential cost of contracts not fully approved by the state for transportation contracts as follows:

Audrey Powers, contracted for $10.73 with state approval for $3; John Deffaven, for $91.02 with state approval for $89.62; James Agins Jr., for $4.20 with state approval for $3.75.

no warning, just turned off, but within the hour it was turned back on. One of the girls came down and said, "Mr. Shinnen, there's no water."

"I told her to check the valve underneath the basin, it might have been stuck or inadvertently shut off. She came back in about five minutes and said, 'Mr. Shinnen, there's still no water. There's no water anyway.' But it was the idea how she said it. No demand in her voice. Just a simple statement, as if she was really afraid to voice any kind of complaint."

"The man in charge here is a Mr. Calvin Mickens. He checks in every day with one of the church officials over at the reception center in Mount Pocono. He tells him everything's A-okay."

Shinnen said the members named their own security officers, receptionists and desk clerks. "They do everything," he said. "All I have to do is sit back and watch. Fifteen women look over our kitchen. Why, I can remember in the heyday of Onawa when we were jammed packed for the summer and I had to be on my toes for this and that and run half ragged going around the place to see that everything was run shipshape."

Shinnen stared down at his feet on the desk and said, "See what I mean. No trouble, no effort. What is it these people have?"

The answer to that question is plain and simple. Approach any one of these 10,000 members of the Worldwide Church of God and they will no doubt look up at you and reply in a very humble but direct manner one word for their existence on this planet: God.

By GIL MURRAY
Record News Editor

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission has arrived at a decision that more local control should be exercised over the county's program.

According to John Mills, the commission's first chairman, the nine-member commission has reviewed what it actually accomplished during the last six years and has come to the conclusion that the results left much to be desired.

The commission has, therefore, changed its basic approach to planning in the county.

Since the commission was reactivated in 1964, the entire program has been almost completely controlled by the state, which administers planning funds under the federal 701 program.

Briefly, during the last six years the commission's decisions and aims had to meet state guidelines.

Mills said that because of this, the commission was inundated with paper work and forced to undertake projects that proved to be duplicating work being carried out by other agencies.

This approach to planning, the commission feels, has alienated the vast majority of township supervisors' attitude toward planning.

It also overlooked the fact that after six years of work, the commission has not been able to solve many of the hard-core planning problems which exist in the county.

What the planning program did accomplish, Mills said, was to get many of the planning preliminaries out of the way. The only solid accomplishment was the adoption of subdivision regulations in 1966.

In an effort to change the course of the county's planning program, the commission made a fundamental decision.

What was needed most, members said, was the ability to communicate with supervisors in the county's 16 townships, where most of the planning projects must be carried out.

Mills said the commission unanimously agreed that what was necessary was an administrator who could put across planning aims to the townships.

This decision meant that the commission would seek a local person, not necessarily qualified in planning, to head the commission's staff.

The man the commission has recommended to the county commissioners is Douglas Williams, who is a horticulturist and a resident of Stroud Twp., according to Commissioner Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis.

By employing a person who lacks qualifications, according to state guidelines, the commission would be ineligible to receive 701 funds from the state.

However, the commission feels that the ability to sell a planning program would outweigh the loss of federal and state aid.

In addition, Mills explained, the commission could again qualify for 701 money by hiring a professional planning consultant to handle the commission's dealings and applications with the state.

The commission has recommended that Williams, who is also a partner in the La-Re-Do Land Development Co., be paid a salary of $12,000 a year.

His basic job would be public relations. It would be his aim to convince township supervisors of the need for short and long-range planning programs.

In the meantime, the commission would be working on fundamental planning objectives such as control of growth around interchanges of interstate highways and controlling the installation of sewage systems.

In general, the commission would be concerned with retaining and protecting the resort nature of the Pocono Mountain area.

The commission has also agreed to rely on such agencies as the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council to carry out studies, which the commission feels have been duplicated.

The commission made its decision to make a different approach to planning after Leonard Ziolkowski, the first executive director, resigned his job July 1.

The 701 program in the county has had a checkered history. Because of federal fiscal cutbacks and because of the Vietnam War, federal and state guidelines have aimed at a long-range and consolidated approach to planning.

It is this fundamental approach which the commission is determined to resist.

Of immediate concern under the new approach would be the county commissioners' willingness to finance the county's entire program without counting on either federal or state aid.

Mills pointed out that during 1968, the commissioners allocated $35,000 for planning and the entire sum went to pay salaries, administration and to carry out the huge paper work load required under the 701 program.

Mills said that if the commission was free to control its own planning program, much more could be accomplished with the $35,000.

Villagers file gripes with Rooney

TOBYHANNA — Residents of the Tobyhanna Village Project have petitioned Rep. Fred B. Rooney to investigate grievances of alleged housing deficiencies and complaints about maintenance at the Village.

The project, also known as Wherry Housing Project north of Tobyhanna, is leased from the Federal Housing Administration by Mrs. Bella Angel, 75 Downey Drive, Warmistler, and is managed by William Bogt according to the petition.

Rooney has asked the FHA to investigate the complaints signed by 62 residents of the Village, a list of grievances four pages long including 16 grievances regarding operation, management and maintenance of the FHA housing project.

Residents identified themselves as members of the Tobyhanna Village Self-Improvement Association and made other claims that the owner and manager have failed to fulfill some 14 conditions contained in the rental contracts for housing units in Tobyhanna Village.

"While I cannot attest to the accuracy of the specifics cited in the petition, they certainly warrant immediate investigation by the FHA and prompt steps to remedy whatever deficiencies may be pinpointed by that investigation," Rooney said in a letter to the FHA.

Gas station man beaten, then robbed

MOUNT POCONO — Mount Pocono Borough Police Wednesday reported a two-car accident and a robbery.

At 9:05 a.m. Wednesday, cars driven by Joseph P. McHugh, Reading, and Lorraine Drummond of 136 Fairview Ave., Mount Pocono, collided in the intersection of Sterling and Pine Hill Roads.

Monday night at 10:50, Thomas Bracelin, an attendant at Satellite Gas Station was found on the floor of the garage by Charles Schuler. Both men are employees at the station. Police were notified at 12:05 a.m. Tuesday that Bracelin had been robbed of $34.

Bracelin told police that a man between the age of 25 and 30 had come into the station, ordered gas, and as he pumped the gas the two men talked.

The conversation continued into the station and the next thing Bracelin remembers is being found on the floor, police said.

County's reaction mixed to new planning proposal

STROUDSBURG — Two Monroe County Commissioners have voiced reservations over the planning commission's new approach, while the commissioners' chairman has fully endorsed the plan.

The planning commission has suggested that it can provide better planning with an administrator who can communicate with township supervisors, but who is not necessarily a professional planner.

Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis and Arlington (Bud) Martin have raised objections to the new approach, while Elwood Hintze has endorsed the planning commission proposal.

Mrs. Shukaitis said she would agree to the new program only if she is fully satisfied that the planning commission has the services of a qualified professional planner.

"The planning commission is only five years old. It is too soon to dispense with the services of a professional planner. I say this because of the importance of planning in the county because of Tocks Island. We are not just another rural county."

In its new approach to planning, the commission has proposed that it rely on an agency such as the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council to carry out some of the broad-based studies required for a comprehensive planning program.

Martin, who lives in the West End of the county, questioned TIRAC's ability to provide planning for the entire county, or those areas which do not fall into the Tocks Island impact area.

Hintze said he has faith in the decision made by the planning commission and will support its recommendations.

"I don't care who you have in the job, whether he has a diploma or not, if he can't get the message across we are not going to be able to get the job done," Hintze said.

Hintze said the next step in replacing Leonard Ziolkowski, who resigned as planning director on July 1, will be up to the county commissioners.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the new approach is "worth a try," but was critical of the manner in which the proposal was presented to the commissioners.

She said during the same meeting, the planning commission outlined its new approach and also recommended Douglas Williams, Stroud Twp., for the job.

She said that the commissioners should meet with the planning commission again to iron out an amicable agreement. She said the job of administrator, which will pay $12,000, should be advertised.

She also pointed out that the county could possibly buy the services of a professional planner from TIRAC on a pro-rata basis.

She emphasized that she would agree with the planning commission only if the commission had the services of a professional planner.

Six injured in accident on Rt. 209

STROUDSBURG — Six persons were taken to General Hospital of Monroe County Wednesday at 9:15 p.m. following a two-car crash on Business Rt. 209 in front of Big Star Drive-In, W. Main St., Stroudsburg.

Taken to the hospital were Lois A. Kreimoyer, 17, Kresgeville, driver of the car; Elsie May Ludwig, 40, of 183 Elizabeth St., East Stroudsburg, driver of the second car; Vickie Hoffman, Kresgeville, a passenger in the Kreimoyer car; Mrs. Mary Katz, N. Tenth St., Stroudsburg; Mrs. Elizabeth Gower, N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Freda Novins, N. Tenth St., Stroudsburg. All were passengers in the Ludwig car.

Injuries and conditions of the people were not available late Wednesday night.

According to Stroud Twp. Police, the Kreimoyer car was traveling west on Business Rt. 209 and attempted to make a left turn into the Big Star Drive-In and it collided with the Ludwig car, which was traveling east.

Both cars were towed from the scene.

Firemen meet

POCONO SUMMIT — The Monroe County Firemen's Assn. will meet tonight at 8 p.m. at the Pocono Summit firehouse.

George Lee, Eastburg, dies at 80

EAST STROUDSBURG — George Shaw Lee, 80, of 203 King St., East Stroudsburg, died Wednesday in McCook Hospital, Hartford, Conn.

Born in Scranton, he was a son of the late Warren and Fannie Decker Lee.

Mr. Lee had lived in East Stroudsburg most of his lifetime and had been employed by Erie-Lackawanna Railroad for 50 years until he retired in 1954.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Cooke, East Stroudsburg; a step-daughter, Mrs. Blanche Berghimer, Bloomfield, Conn.; three grandchildren and two step-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Fannie Andrew, Saylorsburg.

Services will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. in Lanterman Funeral Home with the Rev. Harold C. Eaton officiating.

Burial will be in Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Tigers equal two records in crushing Cardinals, 13-1

Detroit forces 3-3 showdown

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers roared to a record-tying 10-run third inning, including Jim Northrup's grand slam homer, and beat the St. Louis Cardinals 13-1 Wednesday behind Denny McLain's nine-hit pitching to knot the World Series at three wins apiece, forcing a decisive seventh game Thursday.

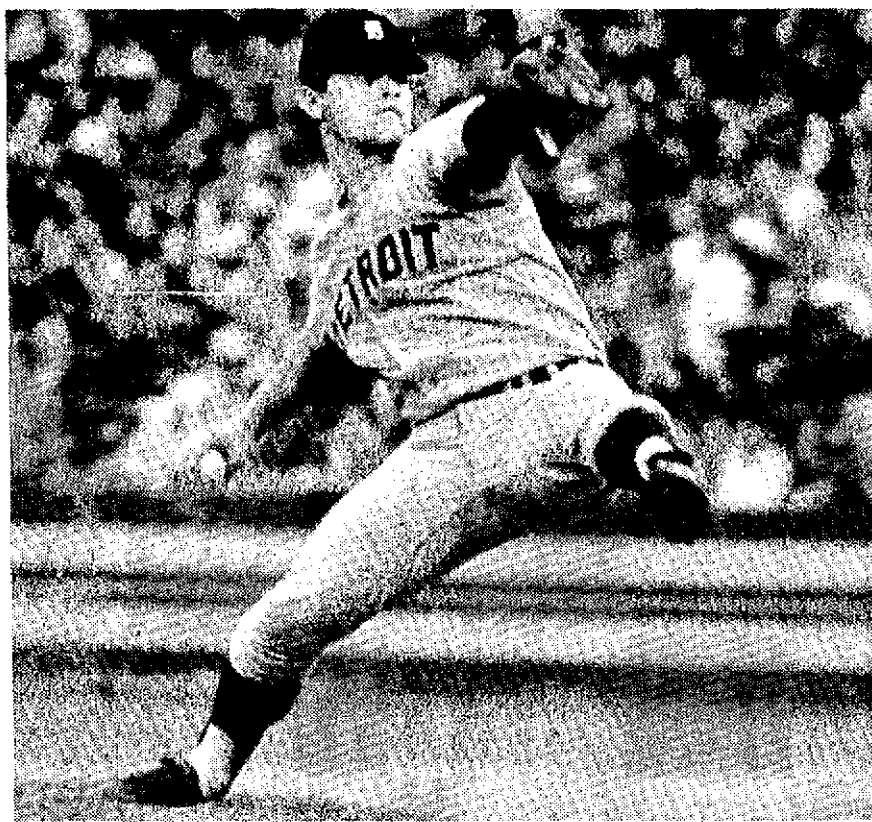

The game started 10 minutes late when morning rain delayed preparation of the field and was halted for 49 minutes by rain with one out in the bottom of the eighth.

The Cardinals had no extra base hits as McLain struck out seven and walked none. The Tigers collected 12 hits for their 13 runs.

The Tigers tied one World Series record when they sent 15 men to bat in the third inning, tied another by scoring the 10 runs, and forced the Cardinals to tie still a third record by using four pitchers in one inning.

The record of 10 runs and 15 men at bat in one frame was set by the Philadelphia Athletics on Oct. 12, 1929, when they came from behind in the seventh inning to beat the Chicago Cubs 10-8 in the fourth Series game.

Starter Ray Washburn of the Cards was the Tigers' first victim. He walked Dick McAuliffe in the third and after singles by Mickey Stanley and Al Kaline, which sent McAuliffe home. Larry Jaster took over. Norm Cash singled to score

Stanley and after Willie Horton walked to fill the bases, Northrup hit the 1-0 pitch 400 feet into the right field bullpen. It was the 11th grand slam homer in World Series history and the first since Joe Pepitone hit one for the New York Yankees in 1964. Pepitone's blow also came against the Cardinals.

Ron Willis relieved Jaster, and after Bill Freehan walked and Don Wert was hit by a pitch, McLain advanced both runners with a sacrifice bunt. McAuliffe was walked intentionally to fill the bases.

Stanley grounded to Orlando Cepeda, who threw to the plate to force Freehan, but Kaline got his second single of the inning, scoring both Wert and McAuliffe. The blow finished Willis as well and Dick Hughes came in to pitch.

Cash singled to score Stanley and Horton beat out a single off Hughes' glove to score Kaline before Northrup flied to Brock to end the inning.

McLain, making his third Series start in an attempt at his first victory, kept the Cardinals bats under control issuing only two singles, to Cepeda and pinch-batter Dick Rickets, over the first three innings.

Horton's double sparked Detroit to its first two runs in the second.

Norm Cash, who had walked, scored the Tigers' first run on Horton's drive, in the power alley to left center field. The ball rolled to the wall almost 300 feet from the plate.

After pitcher Ray Washburn struck out Jim Northrup, Bill Freehan got his first hit in 17 times at bat in the Series, a single which got through Lou Brock in left field, to score Horton. Freehan reached third on the play as Brock was charged with an error.

Don Wert walked as Washburn showed signs of wildness, but McLain, after fouling off two pitches, grounded into a double play, Dal Maxvill to Julian Javier to Orlando Cepeda.

Northrup's grand slam old hat

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The same thing was going through the minds of Denny McLain and Jim Northrup when the Detroit Tigers' centerfielder strode to the plate in the historical third inning Wednesday.

McLain was remembering how Northrup had blasted three grand slam homers for him this past season en route to his 31-victory season. The same thing was on Northrup's mind. The next thing they were talking about in the dugout was grand slam homer No. 4.

Northrup's drive highlighted a record-tying 10-run inning which enabled the Tigers to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 13-1 and send the world series into the decisive seventh game today.

"This guy hit three grand slam homers for me, two in Cleveland and one in Detroit," McLain said after he had revitalized his ego with a Series victory after two successive losses. "When Jim's up at the plate with men on base, that's always going through my mind."

Northrup, who hit four grand slammers in all during the regular season, claimed he was not going for a homer, but admitted he couldn't help thinking about it.

"Those grand slammers I hit this season went through my mind, but I wasn't really going for one. I was really trying to hit a sacrifice fly. Everytime I go for a homer I never get one. I'm just glad I could help the club in any way," said Northrup.

Northrup, however, was very excited about his blast and when he got back to the bench had to be calmed down by manager Mayo Smith.

"He didn't really have to calm me down. He just didn't want me to get hurt. We were jumping around shaking hands, and he was afraid I might sprain an ankle or something," said Northrup.

Smith felt the Tigers' overwhelming victory might be the shot in the arm the team needs in going against right-hander Bob Gibson in the seventh game.

"I feel better going against Gibson tomorrow than if we were going home tonight," he quipped.

At Kaline, a big factor in the Tigers' victory with three hits including his second homer of the Series, felt the Tigers had a good chance to beat Gibson if he pitched the way he did in Detroit.

"If Gibson isn't hitting the corners like he did the first game we'll have a good chance of beating him," Kaline said.

"He wasn't as overpowering in that second game when he was missing. We're hitting well now, but good pitching always stops good hitting."

"We were down and battled back," he added. "At least now we can say we were a good representative of the American League, no matter what the outcome tomorrow."

Jim Northrup's mighty swing sent the ball into orbit toward the north and a grand slam home run in the third inning of Wednesday's World Series game, as the Detroit Tigers scored 10 runs and breezed to a 13-1 victory to square the count at 3-3 with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Inning-by-inning play

Tigers first

The lights were turned on before the first pitch. McAuliffe struck out on three pitches. Stanley flied out to Maris on the first pitch. Kaline struck out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Cardinals first

Brock bounced out on the second pitch, McLain to Cash. Flood lined out to Stanley who caught the ball at his shoelaps. Maris grounded out, Wert to Cash.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Tigers second

Cash walked on a 3-and-1 pitch. Horton doubled between Brock and Flood, the ball rolling to the left field wall and scoring Cash from first base. Northrup struck out. Freehan singled to left for his first hit of the series in 17 times at bat, scoring Horton from second, and when Brock let the ball get by him for an error, Freehan continued to third. Wert walked on a 3-and-2 pitch. Pitching coach Billy Muffett and McCarter went to the mound to confer with Washburn. McLain grounded into a double play, Maxvill to Javier to Cepeda.

Two runs, two hits, one error, one left.

Cardinals second

Cepeda singled sharply to left. Kaline made a good running catch of McCarter's fly ball in shallow right field. Shannon grounded into a double play, Stanley to McAuliffe to Cash.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Tigers third

McAuliffe walked on four pitches. Stanley singled to left, moving McAuliffe to second. Kaline singled to center, scoring McAuliffe and advancing Stanley to third.

Larry Jaster replaced Washburn. Cash singled to center on Jaster's first pitch, scoring Stanley and sending Kaline to third. Horton walked, filling the bases. Northrup homered into the right field bullpen, 400 feet from home plate, scoring Kaline, Cash and Horton ahead of him and making the score 8-0.

Carlton and Willis began warming up for the Cardinals. Willis relieved Jaster. Freehan walked on four pitches. Wert was hit in the back by a pitch. Freehan moved to second.

McLain sacrificed, Shannon to Javier, who covered first. Freehan moved to third and Wert to second on the play. McAuliffe was purposely walked, filling the bases again. Stanley forced Freehan at the plate, Cepeda to McCarter. Kaline collected his second single of the inning, scoring Wert and McAuliffe and sending Stanley to third. Hughes relieved Willis.

Cash singled over Cepeda's head into right field, scoring Stanley and sending Kaline to third. Horton singled off

Hughes' glove, scoring Kaline and sending Cash to second. Kaline scored the Tigers' 10th run of the inning, equalling a world series record for most runs in one inning set by the Philadelphia Athletics against the Chicago Cubs in the seventh inning of the fourth game of the 1929 series. Northrup flied out to Brock, causing the partisan crowd to give the Cardinals a mock cheer.

Ten runs, seven hits, no errors, two left.

Cardinals third

Javier flied out to Kaline. Maxvill flied out to Northrup. Dave Rickets batted for Hughes and singled to center. Brock flied out to Kaline.

Tigers fourth

Carlton came in to pitch for St. Louis. Freehan grounded out, Shannon to Cepeda. Wert popped to Maxvill behind the mound. McLain struck out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Cardinals fourth

Flood popped out to McAuliffe behind first base. Maris singled when his ground ball took a bad hop over McAuliffe's glove. Cepeda popped out to Stanley. McCarter was called out on strikes.

Tigers fifth

McAuliffe struck out. Stanley grounded out, Maxvill to Cepeda. Kaline hit his second homer of the Series into the left field seats. It was also his third hit of the game. Cash singled to right. Horton popped out to Maxvill.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Cardinals fifth

Shannon struck out. Javier lined to Wert, who stuck his glove in the dirt to catch the hard hit ball. Kaline made a long run to catch Maxvill's fly ball in foul territory near the right field line.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Tigers sixth

Northrup singled to center. Freehan flied to Maris in shallow right field. Northrup was picked off first, Carlton to Cepeda, who threw to Maxvill. Maxvill's return throw to Cepeda got away and rolled to the Cards' dugout. But umpire Tom Gorman ruled Northrup was out because he had thrown up his hand and struck the ball. Wert fouled to Cepeda.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Cardinals sixth

Tolan batted for Carlton and struck out. Brock singled when his grounder bounced over McAuliffe's head. Flood struck out. Maris flied to McAuliffe in short right field.

Tigers seventh

Wayne Granger became the Cards' sixth pitcher. McLain struck out. McAuliffe walked. Stanley grounded into a double play, Maxvill to Javier to Cepeda.

Cardinals seventh

Cepeda flied out to Kaline. McCarter singled to right. Spectators in the front rows opened umbrellas to protect themselves against a light falling rain.

Shannon singled to deep short and Stanley drew an error when his throw to McAuliffe was wild and rolled into short right. McCarter went to third and Shannon to second on the error. Javier grounded out, Wert to Cash. Maxvill flied to Kaline.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Tigers eighth

Kaline was hit on the left elbow by a pitch. Cash grounded to Cepeda, who stepped on first for the out as Kaline advanced to second. Horton also was hit by a pitch. Northrup grounded into a double play, Granger to Maxvill to Cepeda.

Ray Oyer went to shortstop for the Tigers, batting fifth. Stanley moved to center field and Northrup to left. Edwards batted for Granger and struck out.

It began to rain heavily as Brock came to bat. Numerous fans left their seats and many remained under umbrellas.

Play resumed with Brock at bat after a 49-minute delay. Brock struck out. Flood flied to Kaline.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Tigers ninth

Few of the fans who left because of rain returned to their seats. Mel Nelson became the Cardinals' seventh pitcher. Freehan flied to Maxvill in short left field. Wert popped to Shannon. McLain struck out.

Maris singled to center. Cepeda singled to left, Maris stopping at second. McCarter popped to Cash, Maris and Cepeda holding first and second. Tom Gorman ruled Northrup was out because he had thrown up his hand and struck the ball. Wert fouled to Cepeda.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Cardinals ninth

Maxvill was called out on strikes.

Cardinals take loss in stride

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Although the Detroit Tigers' 13-1 shellacking of the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday came close to fulfilling Denny McLain's threat of "humiliating" the Cards, the defending champions claimed they weren't even "embarrassed."

"It's pretty hard to embarrass a professional ballplayer," shortstop Dal Maxvill said. "If you get beat, you get beat—whether the score is 1-0 or 13-1."

The Cardinal dressing room, after the crushing defeat, bore witness to Maxvill's words. The high fidelity record player, usually reserved for use only after victories, blared constantly and drowned out some conversations.

Catcher Tim McCarter, who handed a parade of seven Cardinal pitchers in the game, set the mood while the defending champs were still filling in from the soggy field. "Get 'em tomorrow," McCarter yelled. "Doggone it, get 'em tomorrow."

McCarter's admonition was followed by a buzz of conversation, more proper to the role of winners than losers.

"When you get heat like we did today, you can't do anything but forget it," Maxvill said. "They just knocked the ball all over the lot, and we didn't do much with Denny."

Manager Red Schoendienst lounged in his reclining office chair with his arms folded across his chest.

"We're not going to lose this Series," Schoendienst said quietly. "We won it in the seventh game last year."

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS BATTING

Three football wise men

Fellows, they're getting too much

Defensive coach Dennis Douds goes over early game play with three of his stalwarts on the sidelines Saturday, as the ESSC offense moves the ball against Kutztown in the first period of the grid battle. The three players, in a clockwise fashion, are linebacker Gary Schoenberger (55), tackle Carl Wolfe, partially hidden by defensive back Bob Dinan (21).

Sideline torture —

Trio displays concern

ESSC's head coach Charley Reese, line mentor Bob Sutton and end Ed Csencsits appear grave as they watch the ESSC defensive unit in action during the second period of last Saturday's football game with Kutztown. However, smiles soon replaced frowns as the Warriors won, 23-7.

Meeting of minds

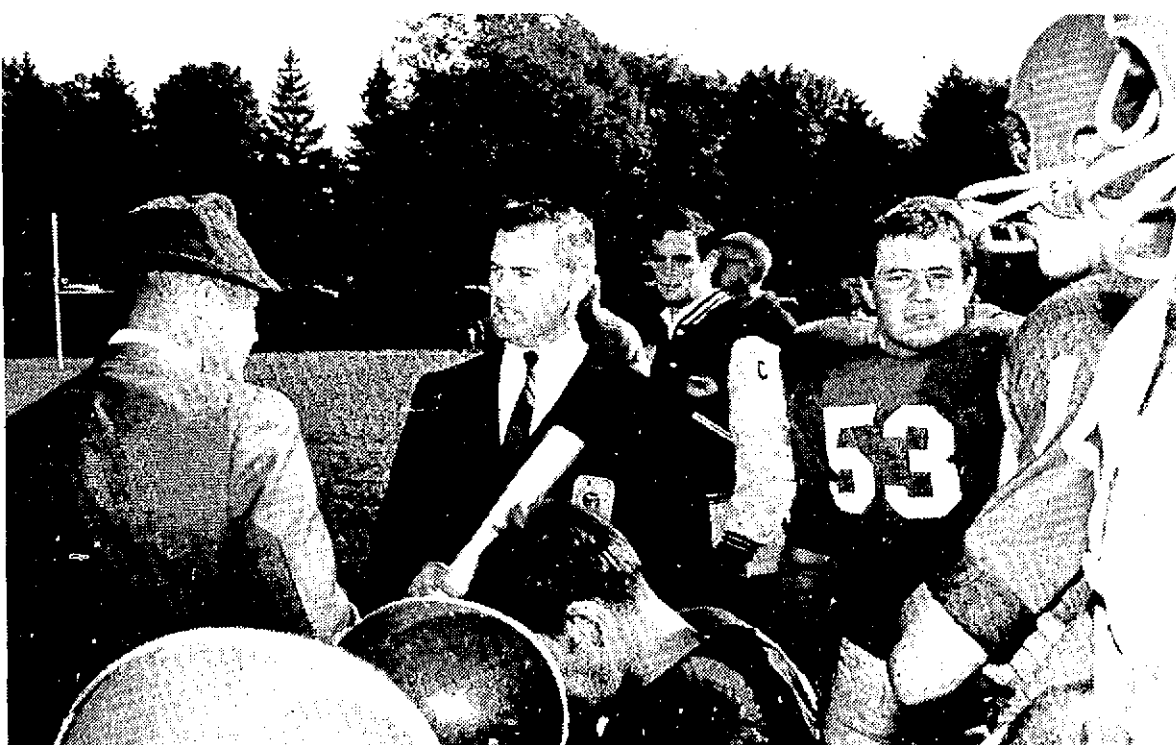

Head Coach Charley Reese chats with East Stroudsburg State College quarterback Bill Dukett while planning the next series of plays during Saturday's football game with Kutztown. ESSC went on to win 23-7.

—even in victory

Sometimes everything fails

Coach Charley Reese's first half body english fails to stop Kutztown short of a first down, with ESSC holding a slim 7-0 lead at the time. Offensive tackle Bill Horvath (88) and Jim Waite (15), a halfback, watch their coach in action.

Coach, something has to be done

A concerned Coach Charley Reese, with paper scroll in hand, asks line coach Bob Sutton a question concerning ESSC's forward wall in the first half of Saturday's football game against Kutztown. Players shown are end Ed Csencsits (85), center Nevin Posey (53), who also punts, guard Jerry Clymer (50) and Charley Corrado (14), a halfback.

'Hey, Mr. Official'

"Look at that, look at that!" Defensive coach Dennis Douds points out the fact that Kutztown is guilty of having an ineligible receiver down field and the officials ruled in favor of ESSC. Head coach Charley Reese, Jerry Clymer (50), a guard, and Henry Kearns (77), a tackle, watch in agreement.

Some patients go straight to hospital

Sick find 'doctor is in' less and less

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Doctors, doctors everywhere—but not always available when you're sick.

An Associated Press survey in Pennsylvania shows not only a shortage of general practitioners, but also more hours of leisure for physicians. No one knows this except the person who finds it tough getting a doctor.

"Evening office hours are vanishing," reports the Lock Haven Express about conditions in Clinton County in Central Pennsylvania. "And doctors are hard to find on Wednesday afternoons, Saturdays and Sundays."

Other communities report Thursday, plus the weekends, as the usual days off.

However, Dr. John H. Harris, Sr., of Harrisburg, past president of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, said "this cannot accurately be called a day off because the physician still has hospital visits and emergency calls."

In emergencies, when their own doctor isn't available, some patients go direct to hospitals. "Most communities also have an emergency call system that makes a physician available on the spur of the moment when there is a real need," said Harris.

That, sometimes, is the rub—defining the "real need." Homestead Hospital, in the Pittsburgh area, reports its emergency room is often overcrowded because patients can't reach their own doctors.

Jack Engelmohr, Homestead's executive director, said, "all emergency rooms experience this problem." Many hospitals—and Luzerne County is typical—now are adopting plans in which they staff special dispensaries with physicians round-the-clock. Persons without family doctors, or who come in for emergency treatment, are billed by the hospital who pays the doctor a salary.

Dr. Dean Clark, director of medicine and hospital administration at the University of Pittsburgh, said part of the trouble "is that most people don't work on getting a family doctor."

"They wait until they need a doctor and then call him," said Clark. "The doctor doesn't even know the family and he is reluctant to make a call. He couldn't even be of much use, I'm afraid."

Even when you do reach a doctor, substituting for your own, you don't always get help. This letter from a Philadelphia Bulletin reader tells why:

"On a recent pleasant Saturday morning, I became suddenly and unaccountably ill. So I called my doctor, and a female voice told me that he was out and would not be back until Monday. But, she said, Dr. L. was taking his calls."

"So I called Dr. L's office, and a female responded. I explained my plight, and she said, 'Dr. L. isn't in just now but he is in touch with me. You know since this will be your first visit, the fee will be $30.'"

"Oh, I said, 'I'm sick but I don't know if I'm that sick.'"

"So I went to the yellow pages of the phone book and located a Dr. R near my home."

"You know," he said, 'I'm not a general practitioner. I'm a radiologist...Why don't you try Dr. C across the street?'"

"So I called Dr. C explaining that Dr. R had given me his name."

"You know," he said, 'I'm a surgeon, not a general practitioner...What about Dr. K in the next block?'"

"So I called Dr. K in the next block. OUT. Out until Monday. That's when I fled to the refuge of the accident ward of the nearest hospital..."

Dr. Katharine R. Sturgis, president of the Philadelphia County Medical Society, said "there is no question that many physicians are not qualified to do general practice. They have spent years in specialties...and are too honest to feel competent to handle situations for which they are no longer qualified."

Commenting on the letter, Dr. Sturgis said of Dr. L. he "either has poor policies in regard to handling new patients or the individual covering his telephone has poor public relations sense."

House calls today are infrequent. The AP survey shows that doctors usually restrict them to long-time patients.

Dr. William E. Papin, president of the Bedford County Medical Society, said most doctors turn down house calls because "it is a matter of convenience for the patient when the doctor travels to the home rather than to have the patient wait in the doctor's office for his turn."

Dr. Harris acknowledged that "physicians do discourage house calls as a matter of efficiency. The day is long past when the physician's armamentarium can be carried in a little black bag, and he can provide better and more efficient care in his office where the tools he uses are available to assist him."

Dr. J. W. Smith, secretary of the Beaver County Medical Society since 1939, said "Emergency rooms in hospitals are far better equipped than homes."

Dr. George R. Wentzel, secretary of the Northumberland County Medical Society, said "physicians are adopting the attitude that if the patient is too ill to come to the office he should be in a hospital or another facility to receive care."

It all boils down to the admitted—and growing—shortage of G.P.'s in Pennsylvania. In Centre County one physician said G.P.'s are scarce because they're overworked—"they can't plan evenings, Sundays, holidays, days off, and still take care of their patients, so they run to specialties to escape."

"Replacements for G.P.'s are getting to be practically nonexistent for this area," reported Dr. William C. Long, Secretary of the Clinton County Medical Society. And this is typical all over Pennsylvania.

Senate probbers question state scholarship awards

HARRISBURG (AP) — Members of a special Senate investigating committee questioned the fairness Tuesday of the state's method of awarding college scholarships.

The complaints came at the first public hearing of the committee, headed by Sen. John T. Van Sant, which is looking into the program administered by the State Higher Education Assistance Agency.

Sen. Martin L. Murray, D-Luzerne, brought up the question of equality when he asked if it were fair that a student attending the University of Pennsylvania — where tuition is $1,900 — should receive an amount similar to one attending a state-owned or state-related college.

Tuition at state-owned and related schools usually is considerably less than at private schools.

Kenneth R. Reher, executive director of the scholarship agency, said that one reason for the possible inequity was the reduction of the maximum grant per student from $1,200 to $800 a year. That change went in effect for the current school year.

Later, Reher expanded his answer, noting that "private schools do have other funds available for assistance."

He added, "A $400 grant to a student attending Harrisburg Area Community College and a $200 grant to a student attending Gettysburg doesn't necessarily mean an inequity."

"You have to study income, assets and family size as well as cost," Reher said.

At another point in the hearing former Sen. Paul L. Wagner, R-Schuylkill, chairman of the scholarship agency's board of directors, said steps were being taken to uncover fraudulent applications.

"We have appointed a special committee to review complaints and to spot check awards," Wagner said. "We have now built into our application a perjury statement, making false statements subject to such penalties."

Wagner said a negligible amount of more than 100,000 scholarship grants over the past three years were exposed as fraudulent.

Van Sant also criticized the placing of an aid program for student nurses under the scholarship agency.

Previously, 91 hospitals that operate schools of nursing received subsidies totaling $200 per student. The $2.5 million appropriation was cut from this year's budget, and the whole program switched to the scholarship agency.

Van Sant said he was concerned that only a small number of the student nurses received scholarships after the switch, compared to the 100 per cent that received grants in the past.

Pretty partisans.

Two student delegates

SWIFTWATER — Two members of the Pocono Chapter of Future Farmers of America, Pocono Mountain High School, Swiftwater, will be part of the Pennsylvania delegation of Future Farmers of America attending the National F.F.A. Convention to be held in Kansas City, Missouri.

The two students are Donald Woodling, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodling of Reeders and Milton Conover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Conover of Pocono Manor.

The convention will be held during the week of October 13th. The Pocono Mountain youths will observe the operation of the convention which includes the National Public Speaking contest and the awarding of various National F.F.A. awards.

The representatives of the Pocono Chapter earned the right to represent their chapter at the convention by doing outstanding work on the local F.F.A. level. Donald Woodling is secretary of the Pocono F.F.A. and has been active in soil conservation activities during his F.F.A. work. Milton Conover is the vice president of the Pocono F.F.A. and has been active in the administration of chapter activities.

Clean-up set by firemen

EAST STROUDSBURG — Acme Hose Co. firemen will conduct a "clean-up day" Sunday, Oct. 13, at the Acme Hose Co. Memorial Hall on Day Street.

Members are asked to meet at the hall at 9 a.m. During the day members will clean up the Day Street lot and remove the remaining fire alarm system in the borough.

Immigrants

TEL AVIV (AP) — Ten thousand new immigrants arrived in Israel in the three months ended in mid-September, authorities reported, and 30,000 are expected for 1968, doubling any previous year.

Beers expected to take senate seat in November

YORK, Pa. (AP) — After warming the legislative bench for two complete sessions of the General Assembly, State Sen. Robert O. Beers finally gets to play on the varsity again.

After a two-year court contest, Republican Beers finally was declared the winner Tuesday over Democrat Henry B. Leader, brother of former Gov. George M. Leader.

Prior to the count of absentee ballots cast in the 1966 election, which had been ordered in a decree of the State Supreme Court, it was agreed by both sides that they would abide by the results. So no further action was in prospect.

The final tally showed Beers with 35,968 votes to 35,954 for Leader, a margin of 14 votes.

The 52-year-old Beers had held the seat for four years when the dispute arose over his re-election bid in 1966.

Beers is an attorney in private life. He is expected to take his seat in the Senate when the Legislature reconvenes, probably about Nov. 7.

His return will raise the Republican majority in the Senate from five to six.

With the 29th District vacancy, the Senate political lineup has stood at 27 Republicans to 22 Democrats.

Doylestown man faces 10 years

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 29-year old Bucks County man has pleaded guilty to possessing money stolen from a federally insured bank.

The man, Dale Snyder, of Doylestown, faces up to 10 years in jail and a $5,000 fine in the case, involving the Nov. 19, 1965, holdup of the Buckingham Branch of the Doylestown National Bank. Sentencing will occur in about three months, the court said.

Snyder pleaded guilty Monday to the possession charge before U. S. District Court Chief Judge Thomas Clary. Assistant U. S. Atty. Joseph Reiter said all other charges against Snyder were dismissed.

Snyder was arrested June 7, 1966, on a warrant issued by U. S. Commissioner Edward W. Furia.

Police reported they found forty-eight $5 bills from the bank in Snyder's wallet. At a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Furia, FBI Agent Norah H. Bass testified a teller told him Snyder's wife had deposited $5 bills taken from the bank during the holdup.

Inmate found guilty in riot

CARLSLE, Pa. (AP) — Nathaniel Lark, an inmate at the State Correctional Institution in Camp Hill, was convicted by a Cumberland County court jury Monday of riot and rioting.

The charges grew out of a racial incident last May at the reform school in which some 21 inmates were injured.

Most car thieves have to be home before midnight.

Brainy local girls honored

STROUDSBURG — Three Stroudsburg High School students have won Letters of Commendation honoring them for their high performance on the 1968 National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQT).

Principal James W. Hantjis said the students are: Ruth D. Jacobson, JoEllen Berger and Alison Blake.

They are among 39,000 students in the United States who scored in the upper two per cent of those who will graduate from high school in 1969. The commended students rank just below the 15,000 semifinalists announced in September by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC).

John M. Stalnaker, president of NMSC, said: "Although commended students advance no further in the Merit Scholarship competition, their outstanding record in a nationwide program deserves public recognition. Their significant academic attainment gives promise of continued success in college."

"The commended students should be encouraged to pursue their education since their intellectual talent represents an important and much needed natural resource. Our nation will benefit from their continuing educational development."

The commended students' names are reported to other scholarship-granting agencies and to the colleges they named as their first and second choices when they took the NMQT in February 1968. The reports include home addresses, test scores, and anticipated college majors and career intentions of the commended students. NMSC encourages these students to make every effort to continue their education.

Free rides suggested in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — City Traffic Engineer Anthony F. Miscimarra says there's only one solution to Pittsburgh's traffic problems: give people free public transportation so they'll leave their cars at home.

"The county has got to subsidize public transportation," Miscimarra said in an interview on Monday.

"I don't care whether it costs $8 million, $20 million or $40 million," he said. "That's peanuts. Unless public transportation is free—like garbage collection and parks—Pittsburgh is going to be drowned in cars by 1970."

He said "the worst thing that could possibly happen" would be for the Port Authority Transit to hike bus fares. There's been talk of a fare increase for several weeks.

Hostesses speak many tongues

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Multilingual bus hostesses help travelers in this port city. There is blonde Renate Gray, 31, who can answer questions in German or Russian, and Maria Keller, 25, formerly of Juyaquil, Ecuador who can speak in Spanish or Italian. "Long Beach, of course, is an international seaport."

A SHORT STORY!

Not a story in the usual sense... nevertheless, it's one we think is of interest to you.

Our story is about

A&P's short-cut, 7-inch, oven-ready Ribs of Beef, and the fact that we remove the excess Short Ribs and sell them separately at the lower Short Rib price.

We never tuck them under and charge the Rib Roast price.

That's not all, though.

For easier carving, we remove the back-strap, too.

As a matter of fact, on an average four-rib roast we trim up to 1 1/4 lbs. of excess fat and bone.

At Rib Roast prices, that adds up.

Another thing that keeps you from being short-changed on value:

A&P Rib Roasts are cut from the first four ribs only.

Our short story even has a happy ending...

your family will enjoy every morsel.

That's guaranteed...or your money back.

Fashion Begins in Pennsylvania?

Right! If you ask this fashion designer, she'll tell you that many of the fashions you buy are made by manufacturers headquartered in Pennsylvania.

And, if you're interested . . . she'll also tell you about the great living in Pennsylvania . . . the exciting job opportunities (like being a fashion designer), the marvelous people you can meet, the fascinating things you can do, and this great little shop she knows that has these wonderful scarves!

Fashion is living today . . . and living in Pennsylvania . . . is great!

Antique Lore

Questions and answers

Q. What is a "Patch Box?"

A. It originated in the day of Louis 14th, the ladies used it along with paint and powder for their face. It was placed on the chin or cheek. When not in use it was placed in a "patch box," these boxes were exquisitely designed in china, silver and gold.

Q. Which is older, Chinese or Japanese art?

A. Japanese art goes further back than the Chinese dynasties. China borrowed much from the Japanese symbols. The Japanese also borrowed from the Chinese but did less with it and little of it was exported.

Q. I have a friend who would like to know if there is any value to a calendar she has. It is a Marilyn Monroe calendar with a thermometer on it and she is posed in the nude.

A. There are quite a few of these calendars still around and if there is ever a demand for them they can easily be reproduced. As to the value of this calendar—except to someone furnishing a bachelor apartment I doubt if you will find a buyer.

Q. I have a tapestry that is signed and dated. How can I tell if it is valuable?

A. By examining the back of the tapestry you can determine if it is handwoven or machine-made. A handwoven tapestry is exactly the same on both sides. The machine-made tapestry has a different appearance. The colors are usually very few and are often dull in tone. A handwoven tapestry has many colors, often brilliant. Machine-made tapestries are not more than a hundred years old. Machine-made tapestries are often done after paintings. The name on your piece might very well be the name of a painter. A good place to research this piece is in your local library.

Please address all inquiries about antiques to Miss Kay in care of the Pocono Record.

A wide field of fascinating interest is offered today to the collector of "Standing Salts."

The "standing salts" was introduced in the Middle Ages in England. It was elaborate and handsome in Gold or silver as befitted its contents.

In the English household up until the 17th century, the master and his servants ate together in a large hall. The master's table was always on a raised dais at one end of the hall, the servants were always placed below at a table. Before the master was placed the "standing salts", and only the master and his guests sat "above the salt". Smaller containers called "trencher salts" were passed to the servants. These early standing salts were of great social importance, but not elaborate as salts of a later period.

In the New World, salt was scarce and had to be imported from England. By 1638 there were salt works near Salem, Mass., and all towns near the sea. As salt became plentiful and inexpensive it was used extensively on every table and salt dishes were then made of materials suited to everyone's purse.

The New England silversmiths made "trencher salts" of silver and pewter. The glass salts were made for the poorer people and often crudely fashioned and lacking in decoration.

In 1765, Baron Steigel of Philadelphia, produced fine clear and colored salts. The New England and Sandwich Glass Company began producing salts in very large quantities and soon other glass companies followed suit.

Favorites among collectors today are the rare covered, or the Sandwich "Lafayette" salts, with distinguishing marks and initials of the manufacturer.

Later salts were made in novel shapes, most familiar are the bird salts and the tree stump with a squirrel at one side.

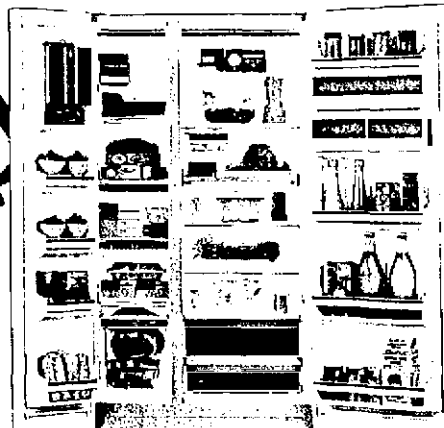

The first cotton mill in America opened in Beverly, Mass., in 1789.

It's easy to "Charge It"

Volksarmee had to be told why

BERLIN (AP) — The first German soldiers since World War II to move to battle stations on a war footing were members of Communist East Germany's Volksarmee—People's army.

Their part in the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia placed the Communist party of Walter Ulbricht in an ambivalent position, having to explain to the troops the necessity for invading a "brother Socialist state," as well as interpreting anew Article 8 of the East German constitution. This states East Germany "will never undertake a war of conquest or employ its armed forces against the freedom of another people."

It is not clear how many East German soldiers actually set foot in neighboring Czechoslovakia, but the number probably was not large.

Qualified Western officers consider the Volksarmee competent, well-equipped, and benefiting from a traditional German love for soldiering. It has about 186,000 men, including 31,500 air force and antiaircraft soldiers and 19,000 navy men.

There is a trained reserve of some 650,000. At age 18 every youth becomes eligible for 18 months of drafted service.

The Volksarmee is fully integrated within the Soviet command structure, a general Warsaw Pact characteristic that the Czechoslovaks had protested in their efforts to take a more independent position.

The Red army inside East Germany encompasses some 20 to 22 combat divisions, plus air force and other troop contingents, an over-all Russian strength that allied intelligence sources put as high as 350,000 men.

Weapons and most other military supplies for the Volksarmee originate with the Soviets, although the East Germans are said to have begun expanded manufacture of small arms and light vehicles on Red army models.

For the 17 million people in East Germany the Volksarmee is but the visible top of a military and paramilitary iceberg. West German figures state the establishment also includes:

Volkspolizei, the green-clad people's police, up to 80,000, including transport police; special or secret police, up to 5,000; armed party "battle groups" organized on the factory level, 320,000; paramilitary sports and technical groups for youth, 450,000.

The group's commander, Maj. Gen. Guenther Teller, says predraft youngsters should be so schooled that they recognize the necessity of military service as part of the class struggle. Their moral, physical and mental capacities should be so concentrated, Teller says that when a youth enters the military, he already has accomplished basic military skills.

The youth group includes boys and girls aged 16-18. Within their pre-military training, they are offered subjects that range from how to drive a car to parachute jumping.

The Volksarmee, at the top of the military structure, has complicated and basically advanced weapons and delivery systems. The small navy has PT boats of the missile-firing type that sank the Israeli destroyer Eilat off Egypt. One allied source says the East German air force flies MIG21 fighters and helicopters.

How reliable would the Volksarmee be if it came up against West German units manned by its blood cousins?

Special border guard brigades seek to prevent refugee escape to the West. They patrol from the Berlin Wall to the beaches of the Baltic. There is a continued flow of defections from the brigades, despite rigorous countermeasures. More than 500 uniformed guards have fled to West Berlin alone.

These defectors say they got constant cold shoulder from citizens who recognized them off-duty.

Yet other Volksarmee members in uniform appear well accepted in crowded bars from Dresden to Rostock.

There is no record of any East German pilot defecting to the West although there must be opportunities.

On the Red army model, the Volksarmee has a cadre of political officers. Indoctrination rolls over the troops in waves, depending on external events, border guard defectors report.

One ex-Volksarmee sergeant described his former comrades as pretty much like soldiers anywhere: trying to get out of extra duty and, if they are draftees, hoping to pass their 18 months without getting involved in anything to hurt later careers.

Mrs. Kuller appointed member of national GOP campaign

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. John F. Kuller of Stroudsburg has been appointed a member of the nationwide Women for Nixon program.

Mrs. Patricia Reilly Hill, National Co-chairman, Nixon-Agnew Campaign and Director of Women's Activities, made the announcement in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Kuller will organize and promote women's activities in behalf of Nixon-Agnew, which is a national project, including fund raising for purchase of television and radio time.

The Nixon-Agnew Committee is a part of the National Federation of Republican Women of which the Monroe

Council of Republican Women is a member in good standing.

Pistol-holder found guilty

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary R. De Dell, a Syracuse, printing-firm executive, was found guilty Tuesday by a three-judge panel in Criminal Court of illegal possession of a pistol at the funeral of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

De Dell, 39, was pictured by the prosecution as having surrendered an unloaded pistol to a detective at St. Patrick's Cathedral under "suspicious and peculiar circumstances."

De Dell testified he was trying to turn the weapon over to the policeman when arrested. He said he remembered he was carrying the pistol.

Halt bombs, Clark offers

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said Tuesday the bombing of North Vietnam is "not doing any good" and called for an unconditional halt.

Clark, seeking re-election to a third term, said that by halting the bombing, the United States would give up nothing but a certain amount of face-saving.

"We should stop it and see if they (North Vietnam) mean business."

The Democratic senator, running against Republican Congressman Richard Schweiker, made the remarks at a news conference.

School board seminar begins

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Pauline H. Peterson, Superintendent, Mr. Irving Sommer, and Dr. Richard Krueger, representing the East Stroudsburg Area school board, will attend a two-day school board Negotiator Training Seminar on Negotiations at Williamsport Thursday and Friday.

Irving Sommer, president of the East Stroudsburg Area school board, said the seminars, under the direction of William F. O'Neill, Assistant Executive Director of Pennsylvania School

Boards Association, will provide school board representatives with background information and training in employer-employee negotiation techniques. In order that school boards become better able to operate effectively in this new area of employe relations the Association is sponsoring several regional institutes that will be conducted during the months of October and November.

The Pennsylvania School Boards Association, with offices in Harrisburg, represents school board members responsible for the education of over 3,300,000 public school children.

Abortion survey

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois State Medical Society reports that a survey of its 3,000 members shows strong support for legalization of some forms of therapeutic abortion.
